READY TO OPEN FIRST AERO MAIL POST IN U. S.

NEW YORK—Arrangements were completed yesterday between Warren W. Dickson, postoffice inspector in charge of the New York division, and Mr. Woodruff, general manager, for carrying United States mail by aeroplane twice daily from the international aviation meet, to be held Sept. 23 to Oct. 1, at Nassau boulevard, Long Island.

Captain Paul Beck of the United States army is the aviator who will carry the first special delivery mail sack that has ever been transported through the air in this country. Captain Beck will receive the mail from a temporary postmaster, in charge of what will be known as "Aeroplane Station No. 1."

The aviator will start from the aviation field each day, one half hour before the regular program begins. The next delivery will be made at any hour during the afternoon before the end of the program.

CORNING, N. Y.—James J. Ward was again delayed today in his attempt to fly across the continent. This time it was a heavy fog that prevented the aviator from beginning another stage of his journey.

ONLY ONE POINT IS SAID TO REMAIN IN MOROCCO DISPUTE

FRANKFORT-ON-THE-MAIN, Ger.—The Berlin correspondent of the Frankfurter Zeitung reports today that an agreement has been reached by Germany and France on all points, except one, and that the program assures Germany's economic rights in Morocco.

PARIS—After an all-night conference with a group of leading French financiers, Baron Rothschild of Frankfurt, acting on behalf of German bankers was unable to secure any concessions except on the understanding that the German financiers should force the government to settle the Moroccan troubles, and thus reassure business everywhere.

German 4 per cent government notes to the extent of 300,000,000 marks come due next Monday. Most of them are held in France where they were placed by German banks. Because of this fact it is now believed here that Germany will be willing to accept a compromise proposition soon.

NEWTON Y. M. C. A. HOLDS FIRST CAMPAIGN DINNER

NEWTON, Mass.—Seventy-five new members have been added to the membership of Newton Y. M. C. A., as the result of the first day's work of a six days' campaign for 1000 new members. As an inducement 5000 free full privileges have been offered. In order to reach the 1000 mark each member of the teams which have been formed is required to bring two members.

Plans for the campaign were outlined at a dinner at the building last evening. Dinners are to be served each evening of the six days of the campaign. The speakers yesterday were Allen C. Emery, president of the association; H. W. Bascom, secretary, and H. L. Frazier, chairman of the committee that is conducting the campaign.

Mr. Frazier said that 2500 buttons bearing the words "Be one of the 1000 Newton Y. M. C. A." were to be distributed in Newton, Watertown and

U. S. TO APPOINT 400 FOR FORESTRY WORK AFTER CIVIL TESTS

Within the next year the United States civil service commission will appoint to the forest service at least 400 assistant forest rangers at an entrance salary of $1100 per year.

To secure eligibles for these positions the local United States civil service bureau has received instructions from Washington to secure as many applicants as possible to compete at examinations to be held in 19 southern and western states on Oct. 23 and 24.

Assistant Secretary Reynolds of the New England civil service district in discussing this examination today stated that it was an exceptionally good opportunity for college men who have been studying forestry. The position at the start pays $1100 and the promotions and increases are rapid after once being appointed.

Applicants for these positions will have to go to the places where they wish to be located, to take the tests. Those desiring to compete in this examination should apply at once either to the United States civil service commission at Washington, or to the forest supervisor at any of the places mentioned above, for form 1800 and a copy of the "Information Regarding Employment in the National Forests."

The nearest state to New England in which tests will be held is Florida. The other states are in the West.

FOUR REPUBLICANS IN SENATE CONTEST FOR CAPE DISTRICT

Four Republicans are contesting on Cape Cod for nomination to the seat held by Senator John E. White before he was elected state auditor.

At the Republican state headquarters the contest is said to be one of the liveliest in the state as a nomination in the cape district is generally considered tantamount to an election.

In the present senatorial contest the voters are said to be grouped practically into two factions, those who favor and those who oppose the nomination and election of Capt. Thomas Pattison of Barnstable. The opponents of Captain Pattison, it is said, are scattering their support among the other three candidates. Frank W. Chipman of Sandwich, Alfred W. Cushman of Provincetown and Edric Eldridge of Yarmouth.

NEEDHAM INDUSTRIES ALL REPRESENTED IN ANNIVERSARY PARADE

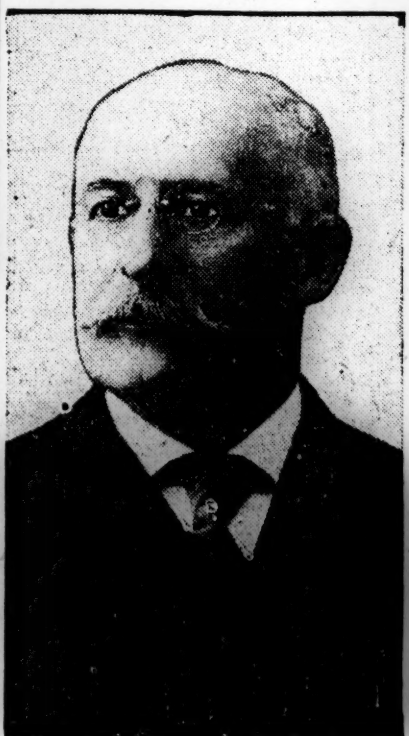

NEEDHAM, Mass.—The success and enthusiasm which characterized every feature of the first day of Needham's bicentennial celebration Monday were repeated when the civic and trades parade rounded the village common this morning. Every one of the many and varied industries of the town was well represented under the direction of the parade marshal, Edmund G. Pond. The crowd was estimated at 3000.

The parade took half an hour to pass a given point. There were numerous floats portraying local activities. The parade committee were Edmund G. Pond, Frederick T. Singleton, Reginald C. Foster, J. Drossman and E. W. Adams.

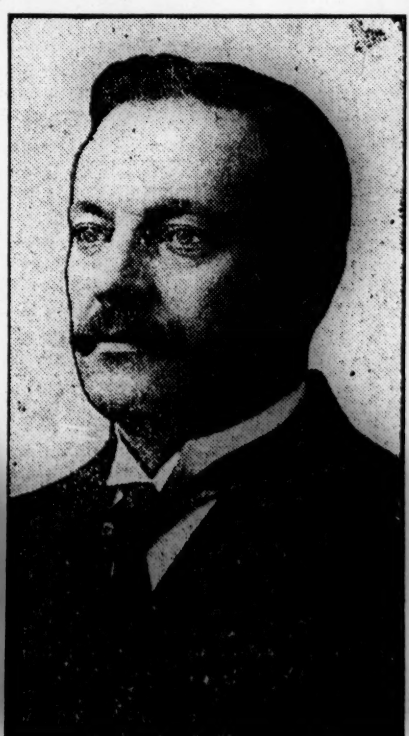

The procession was reviewed at the town hall by the bicentennial committee, the selectmen and guests of the town for the day.

A dinner is to be held in the new town hall at 4 p. m., followed by a concert and ball in the evening on the floor of the great assembly room. Governor Foss, Lieutenant-Governor Frothingham, Speaker Walker and many other state and county officials will be present.

REPORT TWO BILLS AGAINST OFFICIALS OF UNITED SHOE

Federal Grand Jury Indicts Six Men Prominent in Management of Business on Charges of Violating Provisions of Sherman Law

RESTRAINT OF TRADE ALLEGED

Result of Five Months Investigation by Special Assistant U. S. Attorney General Gregg Following Complaints by Manufacturers.

The United States circuit court grand jury, under the supervision of United States Attorney Asa P. French, assisted by William S. Gregg and Oliver E. Pagan, representatives of the department of justice, from Washington, today presented to the court two indictments, each being against Sidney N. Winslow, Edward P. Hurd, George W. Brown, James J. Storrow, William Barbour and Elmer P. Howe, all prominent in the management of the so-called "shoe-machinery trust" centering in Boston.

In these indictments the district attorney has varied the charge in different counts to meet possible variations in the evidence at the trial and possible variations in the views of the trial court and higher courts as to the applicability of the different provisions of the Sherman law to the facts stated.

Both indictments charge that the six defendants have been working through the instrumentality of the United Shoe Machinery Company, which they have dominated and controlled in a way to make them as individuals criminally liable under the Sherman act.

Describe Business

The indictments first describe the shoe manufacturing business and the shoe machinery manufacturing business as they existed prior to and on Feb. 7, 1899, and then set forth all the facts pertaining to the merger on that day of the three old shoe machinery manufacturing corporations—the Consolidated and McKay Lasting Machine Company, formerly dominated by defendants Winslow, Hurd and Brown, the McKay Shoe Machinery Company, formerly dominated by defendant James J. Storrow, and the Goodyear Shoe Machinery Company, formerly dominated by defendants Barbour and Howe—under the new name of United Shoe Machinery Company, and the subsequent carrying on of the business under that name. Then is told the story of the oppressive uniform lease provisions, requiring shoe manufacturers to patronize the United exclusively, upon penalty of having all their leases canceled and all the United machinery removed from their factories. It is further charged that this process drove other shoe machinery manufacturers out of business and effectually put all shoe manufacturers at the mercy of the United company.

One indictment, making no mention of patents, charges that this whole transaction was a monopolizing of the trade in shoe machinery and a conspiracy to monopolize the same. The other indictment charges, in one count, that this carrying on of the business under the merger was engaging in a combination in restraint of the trade of the merged companies, in so far as their patent monopolies were extended under the merger; and, in another count, that it was a conspiracy in restraint of the trade of the shoe manufacturers, and, in still another count, that the whole transaction was a monopolization of interstate trade and commerce in shoe machinery, in that the monopolies permitted to the three old companies under their patents were extended far beyond their lawful bounds. Appropriate allegations are made to show the pernicious effect of all this upon the public.

Judge Grosscup said his resignation was based on the ground that after the first of the year the new law governing court procedure would be in effect and his work would be entirely changed, to an extent that he would take up a line of work that would necessarily be involved and keep him on the bench for years unless he could see his way clear to turn over the completed work to his successor.

Judge Grosscup has large corporation connections, especially in interurban and street railway properties. Since he has been on the bench he has been the object of criticism, especially from the socialist and labor press.

Among Judge Grosscup's notable judicial acts are his opinion upon the application to close the World's Columbian exhibition on Sundays in 1893, and the injunction issued by him and Judge Wood against Eugene Debs and other officers of the American Railway Union and the subsequent proceedings, which included the imprisonment of Debs.

Probably the most notable, however, in which he acted was the setting aside of the $29,000,000 fine imposed by Judge Landis on the Standard Oil Company, which decision was prepared and read by Judge Grosscup.

Peter Stenger Grosscup, who came from Ashland, O., obtained the degree of LL. B. from Boston law school in 1874, and returned to Ashland where he practiced his profession, serving as city solicitor for six years.

He then went to Chicago, and served as United States district judge from 1892 to 1899; judge of the United States

Mr. Langtry said: "Mr. Donahue's name will be spelled correctly on seven eighths of the ballots and only on one eighth will it be spelled 'Donaghue.' This office is constituted by law as the canvassing board of primary votes and we shall count for Mr. Donahue all votes

Appropriate allegations are made to show the pernicious effect of all this upon the public.

Mr. Storrow Resigned

James J. Storrow, one of the defendants, resigned in December, 1909, as director of the company. In fact, his resignation took place shortly before the municipal election of that year. He also resigned from other companies. He still is, however, a heavy stockholder, and the indictment charges that he still is "prominent in the management of the affairs of the company."

The collection of the evidence which resulted in the indictments being issued was conducted by James L. Bruff and George E. Kelleher, both of Washington, special agents for the government department of justice. They had been working since March 1. There are about 75 witnesses.

One of the indictments sets out the deal by which the shoe company obtained possession of the Thomas G. Plant interests. It appears in the indictment that prior to Sept. 3, 1910, Thomas G. Plant had obtained patents on various inventions relating to shoe machinery, and had installed a complete set of machines in his factory in Jamaica Plain, Roxbury. He had also dismantled and removed the machinery of the United Shoe company. It also appears that the defendants paid $80,000,000 to Mr. Plant for his interests in his machines. The defendants also obtained a covenant from Mr. Plant on Sept. 30, under which for the next 15 years he is to transfer to the company any interest or right of any description in any patent relating to shoe machinery or the manufacture of footwear.

The maximum penalty for each offense is $5000 or one year's imprisonment, or both. One indictment contains two counts and the other three counts. Within the next few days the defendants will

PREMIER SURE RECIPROCITY WILL WIN

OTTAWA, Ont.—Forecasting an overwhelming victory for reciprocity, Sir Wilfrid Laurier today left for Soulanges county, Que., where he is the Liberal candidate. He is scheduled to make one address there and three at Montreal this evening.

Sir Wilfrid was greeted Monday night by an audience that filled the largest auditorium in the capital city. He frequently stirred his hearers to remarkable enthusiasm, and this was particularly so when he said that campaign publicity had driven the annexation bogey to haunts known only to opposition leaders.

ITALIAN, N. S.—R. L. Borden, the opposition leader, issued a final appeal to the people of Canada Monday night to defeat reciprocity. The appeal, in the form of a signed statement, declared that the people now understand that they are called upon to determine not a mere question of markets, but the future destiny of Canada.

CANADIANS GOING HOME TO VOTE

Bound for their homes in Canada, several hundred fishermen from the T wharf and Gloucester fleets sailed today on the Yarmouth, Digby and Halifax steamers, to cast their votes on reciprocity, a question which will be decided in Canada Thursday.

Representatives of both parties have been down along the waterfront for several days, and it is said that the politicians are paying the fishermen's expenses to return and cast their votes.

CONTINUATION SCHOOL COURSES IN THREE SUBJECTS ARE BEGUN

Classes in preparatory salesmanship, salesmanship and shoe and leather at the Boston continuation school opened today at 48 Boylston street. The salesmanship classes held their session in the morning while the shoe and leather class assembled in the afternoon. There were about 30 pupils in the classes on salesmanship but more are expected as many are on vacations. The banking and dry goods classes held their first session yesterday morning and two more groups will open tomorrow.

The classes consist principally of pupils whose employers give them this opportunity to increase their knowledge and efficiency, during working hours, without loss of pay. The school will remain open for 22 weeks. Manufacturers, bankers and wholesalers are asked to co-operate with the school as much as possible.

TEMPLARS HERE FOR SIGHTSEEING

A party of about 50 from Temple commandery, Knights Templars, of Albany, N. Y., arrived in the city today. They are on a trip that will include visits to three cities.

Newport, R. I., will be the next point sought, and the departure for that city will be at 4 p.m. after a round of Boston sight-seeing. There a reception committee will entertain the party and among the attractions provided will be a clam-bake Wednesday. Then the guests will be escorted to the steamer for New York and next day will sail up the Hudson for home.

MISS WHITLEY TO NAME COLLIER

REPUBLICAN CONTEST FOR HEAD OF TICKET PUZZLES POLITICIANS

say that even the campaign managers of the candidates do not express the same confidence they did a fortnight ago.

Many reasons are given for the seeming inability of Republican leaders to agree on the probable result of the gubernatorial fight. Three-cornered contests are nearly always regarded as uncertainties. One can never reasonably predict as to what extent two candidates will cut into each other and thereby help the third.

Added to this general cause for uncertainty politicians declare there are two special conditions entering the campaign this year that tend to increase the impossibility to calculate with reason as to who will capture the gubernatorial nomination. The first of these is said to be the new direct nomination law. This being the first year that the new system of nominating directly by the people has been used in Massachusetts, and being a complete revolution from the old plan of nomination by convention, there is no way of telling, the politicians say, what its effect will be in nominating a Republican Governor.

The other factor said to enter specially into the campaign this year to upset the calculations of the wisecracks is the uncertainty as to how large a part of the disaffected Republican vote which it is generally admitted went to Governor Foss last year will come back to the Republican column. This vote, it is claimed by many, amounted to 50,000.

One of the leading members of the Republican state committee whose political forecasts have weight with most Republicans of the state, today said that nothing as to the outcome of the gubernatorial contest could reasonably be foretold. "At the present time it looks to me as though Mr. White was forging ahead fast," he said. "He seems sure of second place if he doesn't get first."

Another prominent Republican in close touch with the state committee remarked that the state committee had been unable to date to "get a line" on how the three-cornered fight was going to result.

Charles S. Baxter, campaign manager for Lieutenant-Governor Frothingham, claims a big vote in Boston for the latter which Mr. Baxter believes will give the Lieutenant-Governor the nomination.

Speaker Walker's friends are equally confident that he will be victorious. Representative Saunders of Clinton declares that Mr. Walker will carry Worcester county and Representative Haigis, the Walker campaign manager in western Massachusetts, still maintains that the four western counties will go in Mr. Walker's favor.

Postponement of the outing and barbecue of the Democratic city committee from Sept. 9 until next Saturday insures the attendance of additional campaign orators.

Gov. Frederick W. Plaisted of Maine was booked to be a speaker on the original date, but business compelled him to remain at home. Next Saturday he will be present. Mayor Fitzgerald, now in Chicago, will endeavor to induce Mayor Carter Harrison to come to Boston as one of the speakers.

Again today Essex county becomes the campaigning ground of Speaker Joseph Walker and Representative Norman H. White, two of the candidates for the Republican nomination for Governor.

Speaker Walker left Boston early today for Andover where he was taken in charge by former Representative Samuel H. Boutwell and presented to a gathering of the townsfolk at Memorial hall. After a brief speech Mr. Walker journeyed to Methuen where he was introduced to many Republicans by former Representative Edgar G. Holt.

Mr. Walker's plans call for a rally in Haverhill this evening where he expects to deliver his regular campaign address.

Representative White went to Haverhill this noon where he expects to be joined by Senator Arthur L. Nason for a tour through the county ending in Lawrence. In the latter city the White campaigners have arranged for four rallies this evening. Mr. White will cross Speaker Walker's trail at Andover where the former also plans to speak to a Republican gathering.

Lieutenant-Governor Frothingham goes to Needham this afternoon for a conference with his political workers in that vicinity. This evening he will meet his Lynn workers at the hotel Seymour in that city.

Walker Praises Opponents

In answer to a statement by Representative Norman H. White that he proposed during the remainder of the campaign for the Republican gubernatorial nomination to criticize the political records of his opponents Speaker Joseph Walker, in an address in Cambridge Monday evening, declared that he would not attack the other candidates' records and then proceeded to compliment them. He assured both of his support if either were nominated.

Lieutenant-Governor Frothingham, Mr. Walker said, was a "conscientious, straightforward, honest gentleman who would make a good Governor."

Referring to his opponent Speaker Walker said in part: "Representative White, if elected, would make a better Governor than Governor Foss."

intended for him, whether they are cast for Frank J. Donahue or for Frank J. Donaghue."

"If Mr. Donahue applies to the court for a writ of mandamus to compel me to reprint the ballots, I shall tell the court just what I have stated here, and I haven't the slightest doubt as to what the court will do."

"In my report to the Legislature next January I shall recommend that this office be given an additional week in which to do its work in connection with the primaries."

The task of shipping the ballots to be used at the state primaries next Thursday was begun today, and it is not expected to be completed before Saturday. The state printers have put on a large force of extra men to complete the work, the magnitude of which the general public little realizes.

No less than 12 presses are required for printing the ballots, and the minimum "run" of each of these presses will be 130 hours, thus making it necessary to keep them going day and night. While such a long run is not at all unusual in large printing offices, it must be remembered that the "form" from which the ballots are printed must frequently be changed, because of the many different districts, the state printers estimating that the number of such changes is fully 5000.

The total number of ballots to be printed for the primaries will be somewhat in excess of 1,000,000.

GENERAL FIRMIN PASSES AWAY

ST. THOMAS, D. W. I.—Gen. Antenor Firmin, unsuccessful candidate for the Haytian presidency, passed away here today. He had a large following in the recent revolt, but General Leconte gained control before he arrived.

General Firmin was a man of considerable education and culture. In the spring of 1902, following the resignation of President Sam and the establishment of a provisional government, a revolutionary movement in favor of General Firmin developed and in July he was proclaimed President at Artibonite. His tenure of office was very brief, civil war following his assumption of office. He was defeated and driven into exile by Gen. Nord Alexis, who assumed the office of President in the following October.

the capital have been cut and soldiers have been ordered out to repair them. The censorship of news is again in force.

There was rioting in Barcelona and Valencia today and the police used hot water to scatter the rioters. Cavalry have been sent to aid the authorities.

The rioting at Saragossa was renewed today and the civil guard and workers were in conflict. Troops stopped a procession through the streets with banners bearing revolutionary utterances.

The situation at Bilbao, Saragossa, Huelva, Cadiz, Seville, Gijon, Corunna and Ferrer is reported to be more serious. The leaders of the strikers declare that the railroad employees will join the strike by tomorrow at the latest.

VIENNA, Aust.—Martial law was declared here today owing to the rioting against the high cost of living. More than 175 arrests have been made.

Widespread Discontent Shown by Revolutionary Aspect of French Riots

(Special to the Monitor)

PARIS.—The dear food agitation which has been daily growing during the last few weeks in France has at last reached such proportions that it includes an activity extending from Finistere all through the west coast and the whole of northern France; it has in fact become a veritable revolution.

The question has been fully considered by the president of the council and it is reported that he has issued to the various prefects of the affected areas positive instructions which include the taking of severe measures for putting a stop to what the government now regards as an organized political movement carried out under the guise of a protest against unfavorable economic conditions.

The protest against the rise in the price of provisions which began as a sort of domestic agitation is now an organized affair directed from the headquarters of the labor party in Paris and carried out by their local committees throughout the districts above mentioned. The prefect of the Finistere, as well as some of the others, has wired for reinforcements of gendarmes to cope with the rising disorder which is taking the form of attacks by the men and women of the peasant and working classes against those of their own class who will not join them, and more especially against the families of the bourgeois class whom they are compelling by force to join in their manifestations.

If these occurrences were isolated ones or purely local they would not need to be regarded very seriously, but when they reach such proportions as in the present case, where hundreds of thousands of people are daily joining in outbreaks, one naturally supposes there is some hidden reason or influence at the back.

A noticeable feature in the present movement has been observed by the authorities, viz.: That strangers have seemed to take an active part in organizing attacks on the police and local authorities. This practice has been in fact almost universal, and mysterious motor cars have been seen on the country roads conveying, it is alleged, revolvers and other arms for distribution among the agitators.

It has been discovered that an unusual amount of money has been spent in this organization, and the question is pertinently asked, where it all comes from, and what is the real source of the movement?

La Presse says that the campaign has certainly necessitated a considerable amount of money on some one's part; that circulars have been delivered broadcast and bands of women conveyed from one place to another by railway. It is not likely, it says, that they paid for their own tickets.

It is supposed that foreign influence is at the bottom of it and that the Socialists are being merely used as tools for causing a disturbance. If the government, says this paper, really wishes to know the source of the trouble they can quickly enough find out through their special commissaries.

One result of the special conditions which prevail is that the government has caused M. Henin, head of the secret police, to devote himself specially to the necessary organization of the forces in the north and west of France. He has just left Paris for Lille for that purpose and will later visit the other important towns and centers affected by the disturbances.

REPORT TWO BILLS AGAINST OFFICIALS OF UNITED SHOE

come into court to furnish bail, and it is expected that their counsel will file a number of motions in opposing the indictment.

Special Assistant Attorney-General Gregg and a corps of special assistants were engaged with District Attorney Frank for five months in the investigation of the corporation to determine whether it has been conducting a monopoly in restraint of trade, in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law.

Charles H. Jones, president of the Commonwealth Shoe & Leather Company, was active among the shoe men in preparing evidence for the prosecution. The complaint was made that manufacturers were not allowed to purchase their own machines and that the machine supplies such as thread, needles, eyelets, tools, etc., were compelled to purchase at an exorbitant price from the company. Shoe men claim that their industry is being seriously hurt by this control.

A legislative investigation followed the order of Representative Bogue of Lynn that a commission of two senators and three representatives be appointed by the governor to investigate the alleged shoe machinery monopoly.

Charles F. Choate was the attorney for the company.

Mr. Choate denied to Speaker Walker, chairman of the committee on rules, which conducted the hearing, that there was any coercion of shoe manufacturers and defended the right of the company to withdraw its machines as a property right and a right of contract. He said that the company would cheerfully assist the committee and is not opposed to an investigation into its business methods.

Charles H. Jones, president of the Commonwealth Shoe & Leather Company, a witness, declared that the United Shoe Machinery Company was maintaining a monopoly and that it was requiring royalty to be paid on "essential" machinery which had no longer patent value.

The state investigation was rejected awaiting the outcome of the government action.

The United Shoe Machinery Company was organized in 1880. It was founded by Sydney N. Winslow, its present head, who learned shoemaking in a small factory in Salem, owned by his father, who to secure advantages of combining allied interests, formed a corporation embracing the three leading companies then making shoe machinery—Goodyear Sewing Machine Company, Consolidated and McKay Lasting Company and McKay Shoe Machinery Company—and they were consolidated.

The company was reorganized in 1905, and subsequently auxiliary companies sprang up in Canada, Great Britain, France and Germany. That same year the manufacturing of all its shoemaking machinery was concentrated in one large factory at Beverly. The United Shoe Machinery Company now employs 4000 hands, who turn out 20,000 shoe machines yearly.

The royalty system, by which the corporation disposes of its machines, allows a shoe manufacturer to lease machines, paying rentals in royalties on every shoe made. A manufacturer may buy machinery if he gets it from the United Shoe Machinery Company, providing he buys his "findings," such as wire nails and eyelets, from the company. It is claimed that the royalty paid the United company is about 2-3 cents per pair of shoes.

Last year the company brought suit against Thomas G. Plant, a Boston shoe manufacturer, charging patent infringements. Plant sold out his shoe machinery plant and patent rights to the United company after a long contest. A few months later an independent company—the Bresnahan Shoe Machinery Company of Lynn—was also purchased by the United company.

SEVEN UNIVERSITY OF MAINE MEN MAKE MORE THAN ONE 'M'

G. D. Beare of Auburn Wins His Letter in Football, Baseball and Track—Requirements Are Harder

R. SMITH'S RECORD

ORONO, Me.—Seven students of the University of Maine had the unusual distinction of making their "M's" in more than one sport in the past year. They are Thomas Shepherd of Wellesley Hills, Mass., G. D. Beare of Auburn, Sumner Waite of Portland, P. S. Strout of South Portland, N. X. Scales of Guilford, F. C. Cobb of Livermore Falls and Russell Smith of Auburn.

The varsity letter may be won at Maine in four branches of sport, football, track, baseball, and tennis, but during the last two years there has been a tendency to increase the requirements for doing this.

Five of the seven were 1911 men, and of those at the class elections G. D. Beare was voted the best athlete. Upon entering Maine he made the football team, playing tackle, fullback and doing the place kicking for the team. In his sophomore year he played at tackle but in his junior year he was out of the game. Last year he played in all of the principal games at right guard, thus making his letter in this branch of athletics three times.

Beare has also made his letter in both baseball and track. He has played first base on the varsity for two years and been a member of the track squad for four years, and this spring received his letter for taking second place in the hammer throw at the Maine intercollegiate.

Another man who has done almost as much for the university is Russell Smith. He has won the distinction of being one of the best college baseball players in the state. For the four years he was in college he caught in every important game, and in recognition of his ability he was chosen captain of the 1911 team. The other branch of athletics in which Smith has made his letter is football, having played quarterback on the 1910 eleven.

N. X. Scales has especially starred in basketball until basketball was discontinued by the athletic board last year. He played right field on the baseball team in his sophomore year and also last spring.

Sumner Waite of Portland made both letters last year, being a member of the relay team which defeated Vermont at the B. A. A. meet in Boston, and being awarded his letter in football.

Philip S. Strout of South Portland made his two letters by his ability in track and by being manager of the football team of 1910.

Only one junior in college last June had made his letter in two branches of athletics. This man Frank C. Cobb of Livermore Falls. He made two letters his freshman year playing fullback on the football eleven and third base on the baseball team. He is the only man in the university at present who has been able to win two letters his first year.

The seventh double letter man is Thomas Shepherd of Wellesley Hills, and both letters were won during the past year. He came to Maine from Wesleyan with a "W" to his credit in football and was barred from university teams by the one-year rule. Last fall he had no difficulty in making the team as fullback, the position he played throughout the season. In the spring he won the discus throw in the dual meets with Vermont and Colby and the shotput in the M. I. A. A. meet.

GREAT NECK FOUR NEW CONTRACTS WINS WITH EASE

NEW YORK—Brilliant and dashing play of the Great Neck polo team resulted in an easy victory Monday afternoon from the Philadelphia Cricket Club in the second match for the Great Neck challenge cup. The score was 12 goals to 6. Despite the fact that the Philadelphia team was clearly outplayed, the visitors put up a great game and it was only when the bell sounded, ending the match, that Great Neck felt secure.

J. Watson Webb, the left handed player of the Great Neck team, was the bright particular star. It was due to his splendid work that so many goals were scored. His opponents could not solve his left handed drives and two or three of his goals were made because they could not hook him.

HERRESHOFF WINS THE GOLD MEDAL AT SOUTHAMPTON

Metropolitan Golfer Who Gave Hilton Great Battle at Rye Does New Course in an 84

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y.—The second round of match play is being contested today in the invitation golf tournament on the new National golf links here. The players were put to the test in the medal round Monday because of the high wind, combined with the naturally difficult nature of the course, and the cards were on the high side. Frederick Herreshoff of Westborough leading the field with an 84. Closely following on his heels were Albert Seckel of Chicago, champion of the Western Golf Association, and Harold H. Hilton, champion of Great Britain and the United States, with 85 and 86, respectively.

The draw for the first round of match play brought Hilton and Seckel together. There were those who expected to see the champion of the Western Golf Association prove troublesome for the visitor, but Hilton speedily removed any such impression by reeling off hole after hole in par figures. Out in 37, Hilton turned for home 6 up, and he won by a 6 and 4 margin. Playing out the bye holes, Hilton got a 75. The card of this match follows:

Hilton.....4 4 4 4 3 5 5 5 37
Seckel.....5 5 5 5 4 4 4 4 44

W. C. Fowles Jr. of Oakmont, the 1910 national champion, won handily from F. S. Wheeler of Apawamis. Fred Herreshoff had a none too comfortable time in disposing of J. P. Knapp by a 2 and 1 margin.

Charles Evans Jr., the champion of France, qualified with a 90. This included a 12 for the fifteenth hole, where he got bunkered on his second shot and took 4 to get clear. Except for that one bad hole he might have tied the field. In the afternoon Evans settled into his real stride in a round with W. R. Simons of Garden City. He went out in 39 and came back the same way for a 79, winning by 4 up and 3 to play.

Others to win their first round matches were C. B. MacDonald, J. W. Ward, Max Behr and William Watson. The medal scores of the first 10 follow:

YALE STARTS CREW PRACTISE

NEW HAVEN, Conn.—Yale's rowing campaign for 1912 was launched Monday under a regime of graduate coaching. Head Coach Rodgers and Captain Romeyn were in charge and just a dozen candidates reported. They were set to work in pairs oars, but Captain Romeyn said that eight-oar work would begin next week. It is aimed to make the drill in the new model of stroke through before an eight is formed. Captain Romeyn announced that another coach might be engaged later to assist Rodgers. John Kennedy, the veteran Yale coach, left town today for his home in Maine.

BIG HARVARD SQUAD ANSWERS THE CALL OF CAPTAIN FISHER

Eight H Men Among Candidates Who Start Morning and Afternoon Practise on Soldiers Field

TRY FORWARD PASS

With one of the largest and most promising squads that has reported at Cambridge so early in the season, the Harvard varsity football candidates began this morning to hold morning and afternoon practise daily for the next 10 days or so, in order to work up a team to meet Bates in the first scheduled game of the year Sept. 30.

No less than 50 men answered the call of Captain Fisher Monday, and, from the looks and size of the men who reported as candidates, this year's squad will be much heavier than that from which Coach Haughton selected his team of a year ago.

After a short talk by Coach Haughton in the locker building, the entire squad ran out on the freshman gridiron and tossed around the heavy medicine balls for 10 minutes. Paul Withington was out coaching the linemen, and Leo Leary, who so ably coached the end material last fall, again had his proteges well in hand. In addition, Hann, the sub-guard of the 1910 eleven, took a hand at the line candidates and Coach Haughton went from group to group with advice.

There were eight "H" men out and the only veterans of a year ago absent were Wendell and Ted Frothingham, both of whom are expected on hand today. Keays, Tom Frothingham and Rogers, others who are expected to fight for line positions, will also be out with in a day or so for the first time.

Captain Fisher was the life of the squad. The other veterans all appeared to have added much weight during their absence from Cambridge, while the freshmen of a year ago who will be prominent candidates for the team this year looked better than ever.

Following the work with the medicine ball, Trainer Donovan took the backfield men up the field for some snappy sprinting starts, while the linemen under Withington did the same at the other end of the field. There was a spirit and dash about the work most encouraging to the coaches in charge.

The first attention to the forward pass was paid when the coaches had the center candidates pass the ball to Felton for long twisting heaves to the ends running down the field. Wigglesworth also took his turn at throwing the ball, with varied success. This is expected to be a bigger factor in Harvard football than ever before this year. The following were out:

Centers—C. Amory, S. Hopkins, F. Huntington, C. R. Makepeace, R. Storer. Guards—Capt. R. T. Fisher, C. Fox, H. Holt, M. Robbins, G. Stow. Tackles—E. S. Blodgett, W. T. Gardner, O. Gleason, D. Lawson, F. H. Leslie, T. Parmenter, O. Paessler, L. Saltonstall. Ends—R. Bloomfield, B. Chaffee, W. Coolidge, H. Eckford, S. Felton, T. Hollister, D. Howard, J. Milholland, E. D. Smith, M. Tobey, W. Warren. Quarterbacks—H. R. Wigglesworth, R. Potter, H. Gardner, W. J. Blake, C. Callender. Halfbacks—T. J. Campbell, W. Bright, J. Bryn, R. M. Blackall, J. Forstall, E. Granstein, T. Hardwick, F. J. O'Brien, E. P. Pierce, G. Richardson, A. Sortwell, H. Walker. Fullbacks—G. Bettie, G. Morrison.

YALE FOOTBALL MEN ARE GIVEN SIGNAL DRILL

NEW HAVEN, Conn.—Morning and afternoon practise was given the Yale football squad Monday. In the morning there was a good deal of punting. This work was done principally by Captain Howe, who did practically all the punting last year, and by James Reilly and Jesse Spaulding. Reilly showed unexpected form in punting, while Spaulding has always been good.

Besides punting and catching punts for the backs there was tackling for the linemen. This work was the hardest at the field.

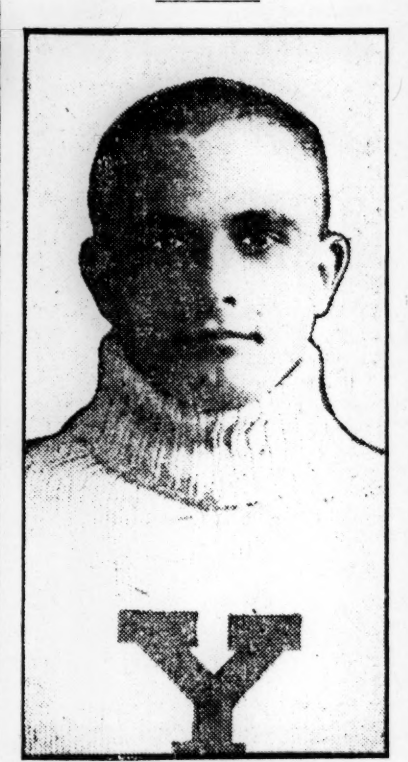

After a brief but pointed lecture on the art of falling on the ball by G. F. Sanford there was a lineup for some signals with Howe at quarterback. There was no scrimmaging. The varsity was made up of Camp I. e., Paul I. t., Francis I. g., Reed c., McDevitt r. g., Scully r. t., Gallauer c. e., Howe q. b., Spaulding l. b., Reilly r. b., Church f. b.

After this team had gone through the signals for awhile, new backs were put in, Philbin replacing Spaulding, Baker replacing Reilly and Anderson replacing Church. It was Baker's first day of practise. He was the only sophomore last year to win his letter. Scrimmaging will not commence until Thursday.

TEICHMANN NOW HAS GOOD LEAD IN CHESS PLAY

CARLSBAD, Bohemia—The twenty-second round in the international chess masters tournament is being competed here today with the contestants paired as follows:

Alapin vs. Suetching, Johner vs. Schlechter, Spielmann vs. Rura, Loewentich vs. Tartakower, Jaffe vs. Marshall, Chasles vs. Vidmar, Perlis vs. Nimzowitsch, Chotimirski vs. Cohn, Kostic vs. Rubinstein, Alechine vs. Leondardt, Fahnri vs. Duras, Rubinstein vs. Rotkewi and Teichmann vs. Salwe.

The position of the leaders did not receive any great alteration at the conclusion of the twenty-first round Monday. Although Teichmann only drew his game with Rabinowitch, he still stood at the head of the list, as Schlechter also had to be satisfied with a drawn game of honors. Alapin having been his adversary. The same happened to Rubinstein, who drew with Chotimirski. Rotkewi, on the other hand, left his game with Fahnri adjourned. The position was, however, much in favor of the Russian.

The Americans fared better. Marshall beat Loewentich, while Johner drew with Burn. True, Chasles went down before Niemzowitsch, while Jaffe had to adjourn his game against Vidmar. The position was pretty even.

The other results were: Duras lost to Alechine, Leondardt beat Kostic, Tartakower and Spielmann drew, while Suetching accounted for Salwe. The record to date follows:

Player	W.	L.	Draws	Points
Teichmann	10	4	10	34
Schlechter	11	7	10	34

FOOTBALL SQUAD AT DARTMOUTH NUMBERS FORTY

HANOVER, N. H.—With its number increased to 40 men Dartmouth's football squad went to practise Monday. In the morning the men passed the ball around and had a short signal drill.

Barends spent much time in drop kicking and Hogsett got some nice place kicks over the bar.

The real hard work came in the afternoon, however, and the candidates were put through a stiff signal practise. The new men were Englehorn, captain of last year's freshman team; Barstow, Ahlsede and Bigelow. More men are expected to join today, among them Ickes, a former star of the University of California.

The line-up of the first team was as follows: Captain Daly, l. e.; Elcock, l. g.; Behr, l. t.; Gibson, c.; Bennett, r. g.; Barends, r. t.; Dunbar, r. e.; Hogsett, q. b.; Hoban, r. h. b.; Estep, l. h. b.; Snow, f. b. Llewellyn was tried at quarter; Bigelow, Farnum, Whitmore and Elcock went in the line, and Dudley went at fullback.

George Holan, halfback on last fall's eleven, is in town, but it is doubtful if he will return to college. Candidates for the 1915 team will be called out later on in the week.

BOSTON SCHOOL COACHES

While it has not yet been definitely announced, it is expected that with the one exception of High School of Commerce the coaches which handled the various football teams of the Boston high schools in 1910 will again be assigned to the same positions. Commerce will have to have a new man, as Coach J. J. O'Donnell has been granted leave of absence for a year. R. H. Fisher and Arthur Ross are in temporary charge of Dorchester high until Coach O'Reilly is able to resume his duties.

N. Y. U. FOOTBALL SQUAD WORKING AT EDDYVILLE

Second Week of Practise Starts With 24 Candidates Out—Coach Olcott Back—The Schedule

NEW YORK—New York University's football squad is now in its second week of hard practise at Eddyville, N. Y. Twenty-four candidates reported for first practise and the number has increased throughout the past week. Seven of last year's varsity men and many of the substitutes are among the number. Although Yule, last year's star, will not return to college this fall there is enough good material among the new men to enable the coaches to fill his place.

Brennan, the captain for the coming season, has been shifted from his old position at left tackle to fullback, and Dressler '13 will take his place in the line. Nixon, who ran the team so successfully in the season of 1909, is again eligible and will play in his old position provided Reagan, a new man, who is showing up well, does not displace him.

Among the new candidates are Von Egloffstein, Clark and Rossell. Von Egloffstein played right halfback on the varsity in his freshman year but has since been ineligible up to the present time. He will have to contend with Elliffe '12 and Moore '13, two of last year's varsity halfbacks, for a place. Coleman and Bettcher, two of last year's second string men, will fight it out for left end.

Carl Flanders of Yale and Elmer Galoway, captain of last year's team, are taking charge of the squad. Falling on the ball and running down punts, followed by hard scrimmage, is the daily program.

The schedule for the season comprises eight names, of which five will be played at home.

Herman P. Olcott, the old Yale center, is again to head the coaching staff this year and it is largely through his efforts that New York University will have its first opportunity to try conclusions with Yale on Nov. 4.

The schedule:
Oct. 7, Muhlenburg at Ohio field; 14, Rhode Island at Ohio field; 28, Williams at Williams field.
Nov. 4, Yale at New Haven; 10, Rutgers at Ohio field; 17, Wesleyan at Ohio field; 24, Navy at Annapolis.

ANDOVER STARTS FOOTBALL WORK

ANDOVER—Candidates for Phillips Andover academy football team were called out for the first practise of the season on Brothers field Monday by Coach W. H. Lillard. One hundred and eighty-two men responded and then were divided into class squads under the new system.

MAYORS SEEKING KEY TO BETTER CITY RULE AT CHICAGO CONGRESS

CHICAGO—The international municipal congress and exposition continued here today. As on Monday scores of chief executives and officials from American and foreign cities were present and the program of speeches, all dealing with better city government, was begun.

At the opening of the congress Monday Carter H. Harrison, mayor of Chicago, and John F. Fitzgerald, mayor of Boston, were the principal speakers. Mayor Fitzgerald compared the cities of northern Europe with leading cities in the United States and declared that in many ways the European cities could teach lessons which American municipalities should be eager to learn. Mayor Harrison advocated the abolition of party lines in the election of city officials as the most effective method of securing better municipal conditions.

ADMIRAL KWANG INSPECTS NEW BATTLESHIP UTAH

NEW YORK—Rear Admiral Ching Pih Kwang, commanding the Chinese cruiser Hai Chi, was a guest yesterday at a luncheon which Rear Admiral E. H. C. Leutze, commander of the New York navy yard, gave at his residence at the yard. An inspection of the yard followed. The Chinese admiral viewed the Utah, the dreadnought recently commissioned and sister ship of the Florida, and upon leaving her deck received a salute of 13 guns. When he had departed from the yard a salute of 13 guns was fired by the receiving ship Hancock.

On board the Utah last night the chief petty officers of that battleship entertained the petty officers of the Hai Chi at a dinner.

PETITION TO FISH IN RESERVATION

The metropolitan park commission has received petitions signed by nearly 1000 residents of the cities and towns bordering the Middlesex Fells reservation requesting that fishing be permitted during a certain period of each year within regulations to be adopted by the metropolitan water board.

During the 10 years in which the spot pond reservoir has been established, fishing has been prohibited and the fish have become very numerous. The metropolitan boards are considering some means of reducing the number of fish but no steps will be taken until another summer.

LAWRENCE, Mass.—The weekly pay rolls amounting to $10,775.02 will be paid as usual today, but it will take nearly every dollar collected by the city treasurer the past week.

Nothing has been done as yet toward negotiating the new $200,000 temporary loan authorized by the city council. Mayor Cahill says he does not intend to take the initiative in the matter unless he is forced to do so.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS

THE selected editorial comments today deal with the action of the governors' conference in relation to the federal courts.

NEW YORK TIMES—The uprising of the governors in defense of state rights might with wisdom and propriety have been directed into a more promising channel. But it is not a bad thing at all that the subject has been brought up in a way to invite the attention of the people to the lines still existing on the map which define the outlines of the states.

NEW YORK POST—It is beyond question that this action of the governors is both interesting and important. The first tendency will be to exaggerate it and talk about it as a revolutionary proceeding. But in the end, of course, the country will discover that whatever is done in the matter will be done decently and in order.

PROVIDENCE JOURNAL—The most important action taken by the governors in conference at Spring Lake, N. J., was not on the program. While the railroad rate grievances of some of the states were being aired the Governor of Ohio asked if steps had been taken to maintain the principle of sovereignty involved as affecting all the states. The Governor of Alabama seized on this reminder that something should be done. After it was all over Governor Harmon expressed his surprise at the spontaneity of the response. Twenty-six were present and only the Governor of North Carolina voted "no" to the motion that a committee composed of the Governors of Ohio, of Missouri and of Nebraska "represent the governors' conference before the supreme court," for the defense of states' rights as newly threatened.

WORCESTER TELEGRAM—The governors in session at the New Jersey place did not cover themselves with glory. They turned out a harvest of complaints. Their chief demand was for more power for the executive of states. There has been no significant instance in which any one of them might have made a better showing for a state with the possession of more power. Several of them have shown that they might have made better records with less power. All of them are itching for higher places in the public service through political manipulation of the power they possess. All of them use the public service at their command to reach the higher places, and leave the bills for the states to pay.

MILAN, Italy.—John G. A. Leishman, Jr., son of the American ambassador, and Helen G. Demarest, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Warren G. Demarest, were married Monday at the Episcopal church at Cadenabbia, on Lake Como.

THE THEATRICAL WORLD

"THE BOHEMIAN GIRL."

There was not the slightest doubt of popular success of the Aborn company's elaborate revival of "The Bohemian Girl" Monday evening at the Majestic, and doubtless there will be crowded houses throughout the two weeks of the engagement.

Horses pranced through every scene except the salon of Count Arnheim and were used at the end of the first act for a thrilling finale in which cavalry galloped up the hillside and across the bridge, rifles barking, dust rising in clouds, shouts of the townspeople, and altogether such a hurly-burly that the count's grief for his abducted child was quite drowned out and the audience voted it as good as "The Round Up."

But this was not all. In the gypsy encampment scene there was a sword swallower, performing animals and a troupe of truly whirlwind acrobats who gave a remarkable exhibition of ground and lofty tumbling, and wound up with everybody turning himself into an animated pinwheel to the great excitement of all onlookers.

There were geese and hens, too, a squealing pig and a rooster who insisted on taking the center of the stage until Devilshoof shoed him into the orchestral pit. All of these incidents kept the audience in very good humor, and who shall say that they are incongruous? The audience had a bully good time, and that is enough.

Yes, there was singing in this opera, too, and greatly it pleased the audience. Herbert Waterous was called on for three encores to "The Heart Bowed Down" and with each rendering he roused genuine pleasure by sincerity of emotion. His song "The Soldier's Life" was also rede-manded. Maurice Lavign made the pop-pish Florestin a feature by clever acting.

Miss Vera Alleg sang Arline with sweetness of tone and tender expression, and also was frequently encored. Her duets with Thaddeus (Thornton Crup-hart) pleased with their well-blended romantic prettiness. Joseph Florian was a satisfactory Devilshoof.

Snappiness was characteristic of the performance, and this gave little time to look for flaws even had the audience been so disposed. The chorus is very large and active, and sings heartily. The dance of the hours from "Giselda" was introduced into the last act, and agreeably performed by the ballet within a cramped elevated space to music by an orchestra hardly equal to the demands made on it.

"BEVERLY OF GRAUSTARK"

Patrons of the Castle Square theater Monday heartily enjoyed George Barr McCutcheon's "Beverly of Graustark" as prepared for the stage by George M. Baker. With constant manifestation of pleasure and approval the audience followed the romantic adventures of the spirited and pretty American girl, Beverly, in the imaginary kingdom of Graustark, her meeting with a handsome young prince in disguise at night in a mountain pass, her protection of him among intriguing officers at court in return for his protection of her from brigands, her growing admiration of the disguised prince in his secret labors for the good of his country, her defense of him when he is suspected of treachery, and finally her acceptance of him in a union that makes her a princess.

Beverly has a pleasant sense of humor, too, for she sees the funny side of her adorer's raptures as he climbs a rose trellis toward the moonlit balcony over which she leans. Beverly bests a scowling general at all bouts of repartee, and as climax of the third act neatly wings him when he has the helpless hero at his mercy. Beverly of course was Miss Mary Young at her gayest and prettiest. She completely pleased her audience in a part that is easy for her.

Morgan Wallace as the romantic prince completed proof that he is the well-equipped leading man for whom Mr. Craig has so long been looking. Miss Mabel Colcord amused in the part of Beverly's colored maid, a sort of female minstrel. Miss Builey was picturesque as the princess with whom Beverly had such an exciting visit. Walter Walker played a good deal, poor man, for he had nothing to do but come on every little while and turn the wheels of the plot. Mr. Hassell was faithful, too, alternately menacing and mushy as the general balled at every turn by the saucy American.

THE VAUDEVILLE BILLS

B. F. Keith's theater offers Houdini, "the jail breaker," as the headliner this week. He does several new tricks, including an escape from a can of water locked within a stout oak chest. He also squirms out of a strait jacket. He deprecates the latter fact, however, declaring it not nearly as hard as emerging from a toddle gown. Others on the bill are Mr. and Mrs. Perkins Eisner in a good rural comedy, "The Half Way House"; the Lanton-Lucier company, comedy acrobats; Mechant's performing dogs, including some remarkable jumpers; Corinne Francis, singer; the four Huntings, three white Kulus, Wentworth and Vesto, new moving pictures.

The new National theater, Tremont street near Dover, gave its first performance Monday evening to a crowded house. Several thousand persons were unable to obtain admission, although the playhouse seats 3500, with prices at 5, 10 and 15 cents. For a time the scene resembled a mild riot. The entertainment opened with a minstrel performance and closed with a parody called "The Wound-Up." There were also singing, dancing and acrobatic numbers.

OTHER BOSTON AMUSEMENTS

Miss Zelda Sears is in the last week of her engagement at the Park theater in "The Next Egg," the funny and whole-some little play of the experiences of a spinster with a cold storage investigator who follows up a sentimental message penned by her on an egg intended for market.

Raymond Hitchcock continues at the Colonial in "The Red Widow," in which he impersonates a rich susceptible American entangled among the anarchists by his very good heartedness. The piece is filled with intelligent humor.

Miss Helen Ware is in her final week at the Hollis in "The Price," the new emotional drama by George Broadhurst.

In Miss Ware has achieved a personal triumph by her artistic work.

"Overnight," with its hearty fun at the expense of two separated honeymooning couples, is in its last week at the Shubert.

"Excuse Me" has brought a new character actor into popularity in Phil Staats, the tearful husband in the play at the Tremont.

"The Round Up" has four more weeks at the Boston theater.

Thurston, the prestidigitator and exhibitor of "mysteries," began a short engagement at the Globe Monday evening.

PLYMOUTH THEATER

The sale of seats for the opening of the new Plymouth theater in Eliot street, just west of Tremont, begins this morning, when the box office will be opened. The bill for the first night, Saturday, Sept. 23, will be composed of "The Shadow of the Glen," a one-act comedy by J. M. Synge; "Birthright," a two-act tragedy by T. C. Murray and Lady Gregory's one-act comedy, "Hyacinth Halcyon."

NEXT WEEK

George M. Cohan's comedy, "Get Rich Quick Wallingford," begins a run at the Park next Monday evening. Seats are now on sale. The play has run over a solid year in New York.

Louis Mann's appearance in a new character, that of a shrewd Yankee promoter of 5 and 10-cent stores, will be an attractive element of his new play, "Elevating a Husband," in which he comes to the Hollis next Monday evening.

"The Musical Revue of 1911," with a cast of New York musical comedy favorites, including Mlle. Dazie and Harry Fisher, comes to the Shubert next Monday evening, a week ahead of the date originally announced.

"Why Smith Left Home," a farce by George Broadhurst, long popular on tour, will be the bill next week at the Castle Square.

HERE AND THERE

About once a year George Ade wishes a change from the monotony of clipping coupons on his front porch in rural Indiana and emerging proceeds to New York to wish a new play upon some very willing star. This year the author of "The College Widow," having gotten the alfalfa all in, dropped off at Chicago and saw Thomas W. Ross acting "An Everyday Man." George was at once struck with an appropriate plot, Thomas approved, and now Mr. Ade is hard at work on the new piece.

Et tu, George? George M. Cohan appeared last night at Hartford, Conn., in a new musical show written, composed, staged and acted by himself with the support of his parents and a large company, called "The Little Millionaire." Mr. Cohan appears as a millionaire who tires of the glamor of the great white way and goes into bucolic retirement. Treason, and from Broadway's laureate. Reports are to the effect that the audience was vociferous in its appreciation. The count was lost of the encores demanded for the patriotic song, "Any Place the Old Flag Flies." The piece begins a New York run next Monday at Mr. Cohan's own theater.

Robert Edson appeared last night at Providence in "The Cave Man," a novelty in the way of dramatic entertainment written by Gelett Burgess. The Providence Journal says: "The Cave Man" sounds prehistoric, but it isn't. The person who bears this jackdonkeyish title is only a common coal heaver. His right name is said to be Handig Smagg and he used to live way down in the depths of New York. He drove his coal cart

RAILROAD FORTUNES

How Wise Investors Can Get a Slice of the Millions of Dollars Soon to Be Made in Canada.

Most of the great fortunes of the world have been made by men who had to do with putting in railroads in rich but undeveloped territory. Many millions have been made in Canada by wise investors who have seen which way railroads were going to run, and then snapped up choice city lots in the town sites along the line.

Prince Rupert, B. C. lots rose from $100 to $500 and even thousands of dollars in the short space of four years.

Calgary, Alta., in a few years jumped from 4,000 to 40,000 population, and its original $100 lots now sell easily at from $1,000 to $3,000 each.

Edmonton, Alta., did practically the same thing in three years' time, making the fortunes of hundreds.

Not any of these cities had anything like the brilliant prospects of Fort Fraser, B. C., which is next in line for a tremendous boom. Fort Fraser is directly on the main line of the registered right of way of the great, new Trans-Continental Grand Trunk Pacific, and as soon as the last spike is driven, values of lots in Fort Fraser are bound to rise, almost overnight. Doubling and tripling your money is reasonably sure, and the most fortunate will pull out ten to twenty times what they invest.

But you must get in right away—now. Grading is already being done within a few miles of Fort Fraser, and the road is being hurried to completion.

Fort Fraser town lots are 33 feet by 122 feet, and are now being sold at from $100 to $150 and up, 10 per cent down and 5 per cent per month. No interest or taxes until fully paid.

Monday's Monitor

SEES NO SPLIT IN DEMOCRATIC PARTY

By CHAMP CLARK

On Aug. 22 W. W. Jermene, the Monitor Washington correspondent, in an article pointed to a break in the Democratic party, as he saw conditions in that organization. In accordance with the Monitor's policy as an independent newspaper, Speaker Clark was requested to give his views. The speaker's prominence in his party's councils makes his communication of peculiar interest, and it is published as sent to us.

I have read Mr. W. Jermene's article about the Democratic split in the next session. Since the time of Cassandra there have been prophets of evil and usually in their prophecy the wish has been father to the thought. I think Mr. Jermene was in that frame of mind in making his doleful predictions. The Democrats of the House of Representatives are not only thoroughly united but they are proud of it. It is the first time that they have found themselves in that fortunate situation and happy frame of mind since the extra session of Congress was convened in August, 1893.

The trouble with Mr. Jermene is that he magnifies molehills into mountains, for the statement that "the dissensions in the Republican party which brought about the formation of the insurgent or progressive movement are not more serious than the dissensions existing in the Democratic party" is so absolutely wise of the mark as to be preposterous. Of course no 226 men with brains in their heads ever agreed about all the details of any plan, especially on any great measure, until they got together and talked it over and came to an agreement. Each one gives up a little of his opinion perhaps in order to agree on the essential idea. The little differences among Democrats in the House are talked over among themselves until agreement is reached.

Mr. Jermene's article is evidently written with the idea of bolstering up President Taft. Just how he figures that the extra session was a good thing for the President is beyond my comprehension. His reasons are not disclosed except the untenable one that no one knows how to make a tariff bill except the tariff board.

He vetoed the wool bill, thereby preventing the reduction of the price to the consumers through at least another winter. If that has increased his popularity there are no signs visible to the naked eye. A good while ago I learned the old adage, "Beware of Greeks bearing gifts." I also learned to discount prophets of evil.

When Mr. Jermene was discoursing of the wonderful increase of popularity of President Taft he probably had not read any of the literature sent by Senator La Follette's bureau. He also perhaps had not enjoyed perusing the interviews of Senator Cummins, Clapp and Bristow.

If the Democrats are in as bad a way as Mr. Jermene thinks they are, and President Taft is as popular as Mr. Jermene thinks he is and the Republicans have such bright prospects as he declares they have, how does he explain the fact that the President is now on a 15,000-mile tour of speechmaking? A man absolutely certain of his ground would not go to all the trouble and labor of such a trip for the fun of it. It is only fair to assume that the President is making that trip for the purpose of trying to win back the insurgent Republicans.

Mr. Jermene states his views with a great deal of skill and rhetorical effect, but I really think that it is the largest structure of prophecy on the smallest foundation of fact that I have run across for some time.

It is said of Professor Agassiz that he could take one scale of a fish and reconstruct the entire fish, or more properly speaking, construct a complete model

ANTI-LOAN MOVE IN CHINA BECOMES REVOLUTIONARY

PEKING.—The increasingly revolutionary character of the anti-railway loan movement is causing alarm and the government is concerned over the recent meeting of anti-loan agitators at Hongkong when it was resolved to organize the opposition in the provinces of Hupéi, Hunan, Kwangtung and Szechuen.

The palaces and the residences of the officials here are protected by extra guards.

SHANGHAI.—It is reported that the rebels have captured Chengtu but that the viceroy and his family escaped.

CHUNG-KING.—The Canadian Methodist missionaries from the stations at Jenschow, Janghsien and Tselintsing are coming into this city.

SOCIALISTS PLACE TICKET IN FIELD

HAVERTHILL, Mass.—Socialists in the fourth Essex senatorial district met in this city Monday and by convention under the old form of nomination selected their candidates. Representative Charles H. Morrill will run for reelection this year. No one was chosen in the second and third representative districts. The balloting resulted as follows:

NATIONAL BISCUIT COMPANY

Why is the soda cracker to-day such a universal food?

People ate soda crackers in the old days, it is true—but they bought them from a barrel or box and took them home in a paper bag, their crispness and flavor all gone.

Today there is a soda cracker which is the recognized staple—Uneeda Biscuit.

Uneeda Biscuit are the most nutritious food made from flour and should be eaten every day by every member of the family from the youngest to the oldest.

Uneeda Biscuit—soda crackers better than any ever made before—made in the greatest bakeries in the world—baked to perfection—packed to perfection—kept to perfection—until you take them, oven-fresh and crisp, from their protecting package.

LEVY ELECTION LAW IN NEW YORK FOUND ILLEGAL

NEW YORK.—The Levy election law was held Monday by Supreme Court Justice Gavegan to be unconstitutional. The chief grounds on which he based his ruling were that it would under certain circumstances create political chaos; that it violated the provision of the state constitution declaring that "no member of this state shall be deprived of any of the rights or privileges secured to any citizen thereof," and that it excluded illiterate voters from voting a straight ticket where the names of their party candidates are contained in different columns.

The decision was rendered on two applications. The court recommends that an immediate appeal be taken.

Justice Gavegan confined himself exclusively to the effect of the law on the guaranteed rights and privileges of electors collectively and individually, regarding the questions as to candidates and parties as premature.

The Levy election law provides that the name of a candidate shall appear in only one party column and gives him the right to select a column. A separate column shows the emblems of the different parties by which a candidate is nominated.

Under the present law the name of a candidate must appear under the party emblem and circle in the column of every party from which he receives a nomination.

STATE BATHHOUSES USED BY OVER 250,000 DURING 1911 SEASON

More than 250,000 bathers used the public bathhouses at Revere, Nahant and Nantasket beaches this season. This is shown in a statement just issued by the Metropolitan park commission which reads:

"The Metropolitan park commission has arranged for the construction of entrances from the speedway drive into Soldiers field, one near the Harvard boathouse and one near the baseball and lacrosse grounds, and to allow automobiles to use the speedway drive on the dates of the big football games.

"The Revere beach bathhouse was opened May 30 and June 4 and permanently June 11. On the whole, the season was one of the busiest in the history of the bathhouse. It is significant, therefore, in connection with the criticism of inadequate bathing facilities, that every day during the last five weeks of the bathing season there were about 500 vacant rooms in the bathhouse and not enough bathers at any time to occupy them.

"It is interesting to note also that during the time the five-cent accommodations were offered in the emergency tent, only 4111 out of 37,314 male bathers preferred the five-cent bath to the higher priced but better accommodations of the bathhouse. The result of the experiment in five-cent bathing at Nantasket beach is even more significant. During the period five-cent accommodations were offered, from July 22 to Labor day, 14,246 men and boys patronized either the bathhouse or the five-cent bathing accommodations, but of these only 220 preferred the five-cent bath to the higher priced accommodations of the regular bathhouse.

"The prices at the bathhouses are 10, 20 and 25 cents, according to the accommodations given. At Revere over two thirds of the patrons preferred to pay the 25-cent rate and only 18 per cent preferred 10-cent baths. The percentage at Nahant and Nantasket is even less."

FASHIONS AND THE HOUSEHOLD

BLOOMERS FOR LITTLE GIRLS

Simple and more protective than petticoats

BLOOMERS make the most practical possible under-garments, for little girls. They are much more protective than petticoats, they allow free movement and they can be made from material to match the dress, or from muslin, linen and the like. The ones illustrated are simple, each leg portion being cut in one piece. They can be attached to the smoothly fitting under-body, as in this instance, or they can be finished with bands and buttoned into place.

A great many mothers like bloomers to match the frocks and when treated in this way it is well that they should be made separately, with the under-waists of white cambric or some similar material; but when the bloomers are made from washable fabrics, it is just as well to join them and to make one garment. In either case, both under-body and bloomers are closed at the back.

For a girl eight years of age will be required 1 1/2 yards of material 27 or 36 inches wide for the bloomers; one half yard 36 inches wide for the under-body.

A pattern (7041) in sizes for girls from 4 to 12 years of age can be had at any May Manton agency or will be sent by mail. Address 132 East Twenty-third street, New York, or Masonic Temple, Chicago.

HATS GO TO EXTREME HEIGHT

Pointed crown with narrow brim a popular shape

THE autumn millinery has many phases and a very fair percentage of the phases are charming. Perhaps the thing that most impresses one in a flying glance over the new hats is the soaring tendency displayed by many of the most interesting models, says the New York Sun.

High hats are not a novelty. The summer millinery was inclined to shoot skyward and one heard of extraordinary high trimmings worn abroad at the fashionable watering places, but the high hat in its extreme guise has not invaded New York millinery until now and women are finding it attractive though often a bit awesome.

The pointed crown hat which has been a summer fad abroad is one of the most popular autumn shapes in velvet, soft, smooth felt, beaver or what you will. It is usually combined with a narrow brim sharply rolling and either of regular or irregular width and roll, and it is very often in two materials, the crown being of velvet and the brim of felt or beaver or vice versa, or perhaps the brim is merely faced with contrasting material.

The material of the crown is in so many cases of no particular importance since it is quite hidden by the trimming. Not in many years has ribbon had so important a role in a season's millinery as it has this autumn and the French milliners are reveling in the opportunity of showing their skill in the most difficult of trimming arts, the chic making and posing of bows.

The exquisite double faced satin ribbons are especially popular for hat trimming and are already scarce and very high in price. An entire crown may be swathed in such ribbon with a bow placed near the top of the crown and carrying its lines on up to monumental height. Such a hat in black velvet with ribbon of wonderful quality and of black faced with rich purple was remarkably good looking, and beside it was another as successful in white beaver faced with deep purple velvet and trimmed in wide changeable purple and black ribbon fringed out on the edges.

This ribbon was laid around the crown in scant overlapping frills quite concealing the crown beneath, and almost at the top was a smart bow soaring in two or three wired loops to great height and falling in shorter loops and ends over the crown.

This idea is repeated with variations in many models, and though launched by one of the most famous French milliners, threatens to be quickly commonized. The purples are lovely in their early triumphs.

There are plenty of feather trimmings to cater to the fad for height where ribbon is not wanted. Innumerable fancy high soaring plumes are offered, and there are all kinds of made ornaments, cockades, quills, etc., which are in line with the liking for extreme height. Coq plumes are back in fashion and some immensely tall plumes, small in circumference, are made up in these feathers and used for trimming.

The Georgian poke of narrow brim drooping at the sides and rounding up a little at front and back is often allied with very high crowns in draped silk or velvet, or in silk, velvet, beaver or felt, trimmed high.

LONG V LINE IN LATEST WAISTS

Kimono blouse takes on new attractions

THE kimono blouse has taken on additional attractions by the addition of a fichu. These affairs are in lace or net embroidered in a border design, and may be arranged in various ways, says the New York Tribune. Sometimes they are drawn taut over the shoulders from the back waist line to the front, where they are supplied in the usual manner. Again, they are doily passed through slashes just below the shoulder at the back and front, dangling over the bust in bolero effect. The edges of the slashes in a chiffon blouse are piped or bound with a soft self-toned silk, and it is mounted usually over a white or ivory silk lining that fits well and has a yoke and undersleeves of fine dotted or figured net, the cuff bands of the latter being of lace to match the fichu.

The kimono sleeve has been reduced to about one half of its original length, and now reaches only a little below the shoulder, which makes it necessary to have a fancy undersleeve.

The long "V" line seen in all the newest waists is not only becoming in itself, but gives a generous expanse of lace or net chemise. In many of the models the chemise is made in three tiers or parts, divided into yoke, middle and a vestee effect. In the latter, lace or a chiffon cloth is superimposed on the chemise material, with the top edge trimmed in some pretty way with buttons, beads or a little hand embroidery. The middle part is done in fine pin tucks, and the yoke is made in the depth and shape most becoming to the wearer. It may be either round or square or "V" shaped, although this last mentioned line sometimes conflicts with the larger "V" and lessens the smartness of the whole.

In many of the new models a close fitting effect is preserved. There is no fullness or bulge, and the trimmings are as flat as art can contrive. This means a return of long waisted effects and a consequent eclipse of the empire skirt. It is impossible to wear such a skirt with any of these blouses, and so it is necessary to provide a separate skirt for each class of separate waist in the wardrobe.

WHEN WOMAN SIGNS HER NAME

Often necessary for her to employ brackets

HOW a woman should sign her name has been known to puzzle more than one of Eve's daughters. Only when brackets are used may a woman write the prefix "Mrs." or "Miss" to her name when she is signing a communication. If she is corresponding with persons who are strangers, whether the matter be business or personal, she may frequently write her note in the third person. In business, if a woman wishes an article from the grocery or dry goods shop she should begin the letter by saying "Mrs. Howard Van Sluyck wishes," etc. The address is then placed at the bottom of the note. Should she write in the first person to a shop and wish to sign her name she may do it in either of two ways. If she prefers to use her individual name the signature should read "Mrs. Mary Ellen Van Sluyck" or "Mary Ellen Van Sluyck," putting directly beneath it in brackets "Mrs. Howard Van Sluyck."

The latter, that is, both signatures, is the form always to be employed when writing in the first person to social equals who do not know the name. For example, a woman may have occasion to write to another woman about a servant's reference and the one receiving the letter, being a total stranger and perhaps never having heard of the writer, must be treated with the utmost formality, but of course as an equal. Therefore the writer should sign her

TRIED RECIPES

BEEF "OLIVES"

ONE and one half pounds of beef cut very thin; trim off edges and fat and cut in strips three inches wide and four long; season well with pepper and salt; chop fine the trimmings and fat, add three tablespoonfuls of rolled cracker, two tablespoonfuls of butter, one tablespoonful of sage and savory, two of salt and one fourth teaspoonful of pepper. Mix thoroughly and spread on the strips of beef; roll, tie with twine and roll in flour. Cut in thin slices one-fourth of a pound of salt pork, fry brown, take out and put in the "olives"; fry brown. Put them into a small saucepan that can be closely covered. To the remaining fat in the pan add one tablespoonful of flour and stir until perfectly smooth and brown, then pour in gradually 1 1/2 pints of boiling water. Stir for two or three minutes, season with salt and pepper and pour over the "olives." Cover the saucepan and let simmer two hours. Any kind of cheap meat will do.—Mary J. Lincoln.

CREAMED EGGS ON TOAST

Put into a saucepan a tablespoonful of butter and a teaspoonful of cornstarch; when blended, add a cupful of rich milk or cream. When the mixture is thick and creamy, stir in half a dozen eggs, cut into small pieces and then add little by little two well-beaten eggs. Season with salt and pepper and serve on buttered toast.

FRUIT CUSTARD

Make an ordinary boiled custard; while it is still warm stir into it stale cake cut in small pieces and some peach jelly or marmalade. Stir the mixture very hard and then set it away to get very cold. Serve in sherbet glasses with whipped cream.

CLAM CANAPES

Cut out small circles of brown bread, cut thin; spread with mayonnaise, and cover each with a mixture of chopped clams, seasoned with horseradish, salt, pepper and a few capers.

PRUNE PUFF

When the prunes are quite cold, beat in the prune pulp, little by little. Season with a little vanilla or lemon and sugar to taste. Bake in a buttered dish in a slow oven until light brown. Serve cold with whipped cream.

MEAT AND PEPPER SCALLOP

Butter a pudding dish and put into it a layer of any cold meat minced. Next add a layer of chopped sweet green peppers, from which the seeds have been removed. Season with butter, sprinkle with crumbs and moisten with milk or stock; continue till the dish is full, having the crumbs and butter on top. Set into the oven till the crumbs are brown.—Newark News.

HINTS FOR AMATEUR LAUNDRESS

Renovating wardrobes of past season

AT the end of the summer vacation most of us find that we have very few dollars to spend in renovating our summer wardrobes. These summer-time dresses and accessories, which are usually delicate in color, should never be laid away soiled and dirty or in a rumpled condition, for the laundering and pressing next spring will be doubly hard. If our garments are to be kept in good condition and give the proper amount of service they must be cleaned early and often, says the Delineator.

By undertaking the laundering of the more delicate and expensive articles at home, a great saving can be accomplished. In addition to making a large reduction in the weekly laundry bill, the home-washed garment will probably receive much more individual care than would be the case if it were treated with many others at the laundry.

Soap jelly is a valuable help and is easily prepared, though it should not be made too long beforehand, as if kept more than a week it loses its strength. The quantities used are a quarter of a pound of soap to each quart of water. Take, then, as much soap as you think will be needed and shred it finely with a knife, putting it into a saucepan with the water to melt slowly till it is clear and without lumps. Then pour it off into a jar or basin and let it remain until required. When melting the soap do not boil it quickly and do not fill the saucepan, even though you mean to have a big wash, as the soap is very liable to boil over, and this not only wastes it, but causes an unpleasant odor in the house.

If two or more waists are to be washed on the same day, do not wash them at the same time; sort them into colors, putting the white ones alone.

Now have ready three baths or bowls of lukewarm water and into two put some of the soap jelly. In the first bath plunge the waist, having the right side uppermost. Squeeze the soapy note as she would to a friend, putting beneath it her married name.

An unmarried woman, having but one name, would sign hers in full, putting Miss in brackets beside it.

I can think of no place, save on a hotel register, or when writing a visiting card, says a writer for the San Diego Union, that a woman signs her name with its prefix, without brackets. When she wishes to use her married name, that is, her husband's, her own must be written in full with the married name beneath the brackets.

JUST-ENOUGH-FOR-TWO RECIPES

Aids to economy in small households

RECIPES which provide for just enough for two are convenient to have. The following are from the Modern Priscilla:

Potato Soup—Scald one and one third cup milk with one half thin slice onion, and add gradually to one half cup hot rice potato, then remove onion. Melt one tablespoon butter, add one tablespoon flour, and stir until well blended, then pour on gradually, while stirring constantly the milk mixture. Bring to the boiling point, and season with one half teaspoon salt and a few grains, each, pepper and celery salt. Strain and serve at once very hot. To offer variety, omit celery salt, and sprinkle with finely chopped parsley, or add two teaspoons tomato catsup.

Oyster Fricassee—Put one cup oysters in a strainer placed over a bowl, and pour over one and one half tablespoons cold water. Reserve liquor; heat gradually to the boiling point, and strain through a double thickness of cheesecloth. Add oysters to liquor and cook until plump. Then remove with a spoon. Add enough cream to oyster liquor to make two thirds cup. Melt one tablespoon butter, add one tablespoon flour, and stir until well blended, then pour on gradually, while stirring constantly the liquor. Add oysters, season with salt and pepper, add one egg, slightly beaten, and pour over cream toast. Sprinkle with finely chopped celery.

Creamed Salt Codfish—Pick salt codfish in small pieces; there should be one half cup. Cover with lukewarm water, and let stand until fish is soft; then drain. Melt one tablespoon butter, add one tablespoon flour, and stir until well blended; then pour on gradually two thirds cup scalded milk. Bring to the boiling point, add fish and one egg beaten slightly. Pour over slices of buttered toast, or serve with baked potatoes. To offer variety sometimes, add one tablespoon grated mild cheese to this dish.

Melt one tablespoon butter, add 1 1/2 tablespoons flour and stir until well blended; then pour on gradually, while stirring constantly, one half cup milk. Bring to the boiling point, add meat and season with salt and a few grains pepper.

Apple Tapioca Pudding—Mix four tablespoonfuls minute tapioca with one fourth teaspoon salt and add to 1-3 cups boiling water, placed on front of range. Bring to the boiling point and let boil two minutes; then steam in double boiler 12 minutes. Butter a small pudding dish, cover bottom with tapioca.

spread with one apple, pared, cored and cut in eighths and sprinkle with one tablespoon sugar, then repeat. Cover with remaining tapioca and bake in a moderate oven until apples are soft. Serve with sugar and cream.

Orange Puffs—Cream 1 1/2 tablespoons butter, add one fourth cup sugar gradually, one egg yolk, two tablespoons milk, and one half cup flour mixed and sifted with three fourths teaspoon baking powder and a few grains salt. TO OPEN LOBSTER

It is not difficult to open a lobster. First separate the tail from the main part of the lobster and shake out the tomalley; the tomalley or liver is green after boiling, and is liked by some.

Next draw the body from the shell, freeing it from the stomach, which is situated near the head, by pressing the meat near the head close against the shell with the first and second fingers. Now split the lobster through the center and take out the meat. Cut the underside of the tail shell open with a sharp knife or scissors and remove the meat in one or two large pieces.

On taking out this meat, look on the upper part near where the tail joined the body proper, and lift up the small piece of flesh. Under will be found a vein running the entire length; remove this; often this vein of cord is the same color as the meat itself; again it may be green; in any case it should not be eaten. Like the stomach, it is not edible.

The easiest way to remove the meat from the claws is to crack the shell with the broad side of a hammer; this does not crush the meat.—Newark News.

HOME HELPS

In frying eggs if a few drops of water are added to the fat and the frying pan covered, eggs will not become tough.

The arm portions of white kid gloves can be cut into bands, collars and cuffs to trim the waist of chiffon, marquisette or velvet.

Fresh lima beans shelled, boiled half tender and then fried golden brown in butter are more tasty than plainly boiled.

If house plants seem to be drooping and inclined to decay, take a dozen parlor matches and stick them, head down, in the earth. The sulphur will kill any worms that may be eating at the roots.—Fall River Times-Leader.

TO REMOVE CAKE

Take two pieces of board a little wider and several inches longer than your cake pan. Bore holes all over one piece with an augur, and when you take your cake out of the oven put the plain piece across the top of the pan, turn the cake out on it immediately, put the piece of board with holes in it on the cake and lightly turn it over on it. Then set the board across a pan or bowl so the air can get to the bottom of cake and so let the steam escape. This is especially nice for sponge cake, gingerbread or in fact any light cake.—Modern Priscilla.

FOR BUTTONHOLES

Expert needlewomen have an inviolable rule in determining the number of thread to use in making buttonholes. If the thread used in sewing the garment is No. 80, the size to be used for buttonholes should be 60; in other words, the thread for the buttonholes should be coarser by 20 than the thread used for the garment proper.—Suburban Life.

JUICE KEPT IN

To prevent pie juices escaping wet the edge of the lower crust with water; then dip the fingers into flour and rub over the wet edge, thus forming a paste; then press the upper crust down carefully and no juice will escape, says Suburban Life. Or, make a little paste and brush the crust.

EASILY RESTORED

Gilt frames and moldings that have become discolored by gas or smoke are easily restored, says the New Haven Times-Leader. Wipe off loose dirt, then go over them with the beaten white of an egg to which one teaspoonful of baking soda has been added. Apply carefully with a brush or soft cloth.

DISHES BRUSHED

Using a whisk broom to clean dishes is better than scraping them with a knife. Right after clearing the table the broom will be found useful for this purpose, especially if it is dampened occasionally. When the dishes are put in the dishpan there will be but little grease left on them.—Fall River Times-Leader.

DO IT BY MAIL

In the Monitor's Mail this morning is a letter reading:

"Friends here have spoken most highly of the returns they have had from advertisements in the Monitor. As it is impossible for me to see you personally will you kindly let me know the cost of inserting the following advertisement?"

Perhaps you may have some need which can be met by inserting an advertisement in the Monitor. Perhaps you may have some product for sale which can find its channel through the Monitor. In either case we shall be pleased to receive an inquiry as to cost.

The Monitor is serving many people, many merchants, many manufacturers, with satisfaction and profit to them. Perhaps it can also serve you.

TOILET APPOINTMENTS MATCH

Bedroom set makes a pretty gift

THE girl who is at a loss what to make her engaged friend should start on a bedroom set. It is the fancy gift, now to have the toilet appointments of a room match each other.

No longer can a bureau scarf be of lace and the table cover of heavy pique, the pincushion a trifle in velvet, and the hatpin case something else; all are of one kind, whatever the design chosen. Such a set is not difficult to make and should consist at the least of a toilet cover, pincushion and table square. All the other accessories may be added as the giver wishes.

One of these sets in pique should have the bureau scarf and table square finished with a deep grouped scallop, heavily padded and buttonholed in mercerized cotton. The only other trimming is a large monogram or initials in the middle of each piece. The letters are also heavily padded and worked in satin stitch. The pincushion to this set has the cover detachable and finished with a scallop and eyelets with a smaller marking to match letters on the scarf.

Other pieces of such a set could be a handkerchief case made like a big square envelope on the flap, a glove case finished in the same way but cut in shape of a long oblong envelope, an oval laundry bag with tops scalloped and drawn by white cord through embroidered eyelets, and a hatpin case made with a linen cover around a wide mailing tube, the top of which is stuffed with wool and covered with gilt meshed net.

The set can be still further enlarged by brush and comb bag, couch cushion, bedspread, pillow shams and the small lingerie pillows that every woman owns nowadays.

Where more elaborate effects are wanted in addition to the scallop and monogram a conventional design in eyelet and satin stitch embroidery may be drawn on each piece of the set.

Where a touch of color is liked the embroidery can be done in colored mercerized cottons or in white outlined with a color, says the Denver Times. These cottons wash well, though colored embroidery is never so serviceable for hard wear as all white.

Sometimes such a set for a young girl's room can be embroidered in white on colored linen. The best selection is a deep pink, as blues and violets fade badly in washing.

A pink chambray set, the material costing from 10 cents to 15 cents a yard, makes a charming bedroom set. Instead of the scallop whitewash braid, which is easily applied, in varied designs makes a rapid and showy working material.

This material makes pretty outer curtains for windows. They should reach just to sash and next to the window might be plain sash curtains of dotted muslin. It will also make a pretty coverlet, the braid being applied to resemble the old time quilts of our grandmothers.

Another set could be of wash chintz, with a border to each piece of a plain color to harmonize with the chief tone of the design. The band is applied with a chain stitch in white or a contrasting color, or can be sewed on the machine with a loose stitch, several rows being used as trimming.

SHOT SILKS

Among the new fabrics are shimmering shot silks which suggest the materials of half a century ago, says the Rural New Yorker. They are taffeta, shot in two tones or more, blue and gold, green and gold, green and pink, ashes of roses, mother-of-pearl, as changeable in coloring as soap bubbles. They are a yard wide and cost $2 a yard. Silk poplins at $1 a yard are 36 inches wide, in all fashionable colors, and are not as stiff as the old-time poplins, being more supple in weave. One is almost justified in saying they "wear forever," for they seem likely to be as long-lived as those wonderful fabrics our grandmothers would wear and make over for a lifetime. The various shades of taupe or mole color, worn a few seasons ago, are to be in favor again, many shades of violet and heliotrope, and a bright tone of light brown called tortoiseshell.

TO IRON DAMASK

Pieces of damask table linen rarely require any starch. If they are carefully washed and ironed while damp they will be stiff enough and wear much longer. Use irons as hot as possible without scorching the linen and iron each piece until it is thoroughly dry. This gives them a crispness which can be gained in no other way, and linen will stay clean much longer than if carelessly ironed and put away limp and not entirely dry. Keep the edges straight and the fold even. Handkerchiefs should also be ironed with a hot iron while quite damp.—Modern Priscilla.

SAVORY HOMINY

Here is the Delineator's recipe for savory hominy: Put into a casserole one cupful of hominy, one cupful of milk and one cupful of water; allow all to cook slowly for 20 minutes, then add one heaping tablespoonful of butter, three ounces of grated Parmesan cheese, a little made mustard, salt, pepper, paprika and a grating of nutmeg. Strew over this a few fine breadcrumbs and place pieces of butter on the top. Let it brown in the oven and serve hot.

WORCESTER GETS 75-CENT GAS RATE

WORCESTER, Mass. — The price of gas to Worcester consumers has been reduced from 80 to 75 cents per 1000 cubic feet, to take effect Jan. 1, according to an announcement made Monday by Charles Dudley Lamson, president of the Worcester Gaslight Company.

There are 24,000 customers who will be affected by the reduction, which practically makes Worcester one of the lowest priced cities for gas service in the United States where there is a gas company maintaining one rate for all consumers. In Schenectady, N. Y., however, the General Electric Company buys 100,000 cubic feet of gas every day at a lower figure than smaller consumers. Lynn also has a 75-cent gas rate.

TRADERS DEVOTE MOST ATTENTION TO THE LEADERS

Price Movements Irregular and Market Has a Professional Appearance—International Harvester Weak

LONDON IS EASIER

An inclination of the New York stock market to narrow down to a few of the active securities was noticeable this morning. Trading in general was quiet and prices easy during the early sales. Opening prices were off a good fraction from last night's closing with slight tendency to rally.

Canadian Pacific was again a weak feature of the first sales. International Harvester also was under pressure. Bearish rumors to the effect that the company would be next to come under the federal searchlight were responsible for the heaviness in this stock which has been declining for some time, making a new low record for the movement to-day. A somewhat firmer tone developed at the end of the first half hour.

Local stocks were heavy although here and there some good fractional advances were made over last night's closing.

Reading opened off 1/2 at 139 1/2 and advanced about a point before midday. Union Pacific was off 1/2 at the opening at 100 1/2. After receding to 159 1/2 it advanced a point. Steel opened off 1/2 at 66 1/2 and moved within a narrow price range.

Canadian Pacific opened off 1/2 at 22 1/2, declined to 22 1/4, and then sold well above 22 1/2. International Harvester opened off a point at 101 1/4 and after receding under 101 advanced a good fraction.

Amalgamated Copper opened off 3/4 at 56 and declined more than a point under last night's closing. American Smelting also was weak. Western Union opened up 1/2 at 70 1/2 and rose a point further. Trading was rather active in this stock. Lehigh Valley opened off 1/2 at 156 1/2 and improved a point.

Grainly on the local exchange opened up 1/2 at 30 1/2 and advanced a good fraction further. Calumet & Hecla was weak. It opened off 7 points at 392 and declined 2 points further before midday. Mohawk was up 1/2 at 40. United Fruit opened up 1/2 at 188 1/2 and improved fractionally. Shoe Machinery sold ex dividend 50 cents at 41 1/2 at the opening, compared with last night's closing price of 42 1/2 and sold off nearly a point before midday.

Business became very quiet in the afternoon and prices showed small changes. Canadian Pacific sold under 22 1/2 before the beginning of the last hour. Amalgamated copper was off nearly 2 points from yesterday's closing. There were some unimportant recessions on the local list.

LONDON—The securities markets were weak in the final dealings on the stock exchange today.

Expectation of an advance on Thursday in the minimum rate of discount of the Bank of England operated against improvement in domestic issues.

A satisfactory outcome of the auction sales of raw rubber exerted a steadying influence upon the respective securities. Americans had declined at the end of the regular session but displayed a rallying tendency on the curb.

De Beers 1/4 lower at 17 1/2. Rio Tinto 1 1/2 lower at 61 3/4. Paris house left off steady. The Berlin house closed weak.

LONDON METAL CLOSING

LONDON—Copper close: Spot, £57 1s. 3d.; futures, £55 16s. 3d. Market steady. Sales spot, 450 tons; futures, 750 tons. Spot, off 1s. 3d. Futures, unchanged. Pig tin weak, spot £176, off 4s. 5d. Futures £173, off £4 10s. Spanish pig lead strong £14 17s. 6d., 2s. 6d. Spot up 2s. 6d. to £17 17s. 6d. Cleveland warrants 46s. 7 1/2d.

THE WEATHER

UNITED STATES WEATHER BUREAU PREDICTIONS FOR BOSTON AND VICINITY: Unsettled, generally fair tonight, Wednesday fair, moderate variable winds.

WASHINGTON: The U. S. weather bureau predicts weather today as follows for New England: Overcast weather, probably showers on the coast tonight or Wednesday.

The trough of low pressure that was over the Mississippi valley yesterday morning has moved slowly eastward and has produced unsettled weather with local showers in the lake region and the Ohio valley. A slight disturbance, central off the coast, is causing cloudy showers weather from New York to Eastport, Me. The Pacific area of high pressure is moving slowly eastward and is producing cool pleasant weather in the western country.

NEWS BY CABLE AND CORRESPONDENCE

REPUBLICAN DIVISION
IN PORTUGAL IS HELD TO REPUBLICAN FORCE

Warning Given to Premier
by Radicals in Chamber
Marks Cleavage in Ranks of Men of the New Regime

OPPOSANTS PROFIT

(Special to the Monitor)
LISBON.—It cannot be pretended that Portugal has yet passed out of her difficulties, or that the republic has been permanently accepted by the people. The effervescence of monarchical intrigues of course is a part of the process now going on, but the inability of the republican sections themselves to hold together in the face of these can scarcely be reassuring to the lovers of the republic.

It might have been imagined that the detention of the "mystery ships" in the English ports would have proved a serious warning. The news which reached the Portuguese minister in London through the medium of an English paper might surely have had a greater effect than it appears to. That these ships were part of a serious attack upon the republic there is no longer any real doubt, and that this attack upon the shores was to be simultaneous with the crossing of the frontier by the land forces under Captain Conceiro there can be equally little question.

Minister Admits

The minister for foreign affairs, Senhor Augusto Vasconcellos, has admitted that the Conceiro expedition is actually in being, and that the attack may be expected to be delivered at any moment from the direction of Chaves.

It is true that he declares the Government have no apprehension on the subject, but he could hardly say less in the circumstances. Warning has been conveyed to the Spanish government of the movements of the monarchical revolutionists beyond the Portuguese frontier, and precautions have been taken to meet Conceiro immediately he enters Portuguese territory and to annihilate his forces. Nevertheless the fact remains that the forces upon which Portugal is relying have yielded to some extent at all events, to the monarchical intrigues, and the mutinous condition of the eleventh regiment in the town of Setubal, a stronghold of republican thought, is an indication of what is occurring.

Republicans Split

In these circumstances, the fact that the ministry just formed by Senhor Joao Chagas should have already provoked an opposition Republican party, under the leadership of the ex-minister for justice, Senhor Alfonso Costa, is a significant fact. The exchange of views between the two ministers in the Chamber was a distinctly sharp one. For when Senhor Chagas explained the program of the forthcoming session to the Chamber and expressed a hope that it would receive the support of a united Republican party, he was met by Senhor Costa with the declaration that the Radicals would oppose the government to the utmost, in the event of their deviating from the Democratic program which the provisional government had laid down during its term of office.

When it is remembered that Senhor Chagas represents the choice of the new President, who was chosen in turn not by the votes of the extremists, but by a combination of those elements which hope to continue the work of the revolution through a conciliatory policy, it may be seen how deep the cleavage is already. It is in this fact, rather than in any strength of its own, that the monarchical party sees its opportunity, and that it will exert itself to make the utmost of that opportunity while the moment lasts, is certain.

Meantime, the new government has been constituted as follows: Prime minister and minister of the interior, Senhor Joao Chagas; finance, Senhor Duarte Leite; war, Gen. Pimenta Castro; marine, Senhor Joao Menezes; foreign affairs, Senhor Augusto Vasconcellos; public works, Senhor Sidonio Paes; colonies, Senhor Celestino Almeida. The portfolio of justice has not yet been allotted.

EMPLOYMENT AID IS STARTED FOR IRISH CHILDREN

(Special to the Monitor)
DUBLIN, Ireland.—The Board of Trade in Dublin has taken up the question of employment for children, and a juvenile advisory committee to the Dublin labor exchange has been appointed.

The intention is that the 24 men and three women who compose it should befriend the boys and girls when they leave school, advise their parents as to suitable trades for them, and try to get them employment of the kind which will lead on to permanent wage-earning.

The speakers at the opening meeting of the committee said that the quick-witted children who now spend so much time in the streets would grow into useful citizens if the compulsory school act were enforced strictly and openings found for them as they were ready.

TURKISH CABINET DIFFICULTIES ARE EXPECTED TO END

(Special to the Monitor)
CONSTANTINOPLE.—Difficulties between the minister of war, Mahmud Shevket Pasha, and the minister of finance, Nail Bey, will be shortly settled, it is confidently expected in a satisfactory manner. The claims of Mahmud Shevket Pasha for greater military credits have been accepted as a result of a council of ministers, although it is believed that the cabinet has decided to meet the wishes of the minister of finance by arranging for retrenchments in the general budget.

It was confidently expected that some such compromise would eventually be agreed to. Those members of the committee of union and progress who had designs upon the cabinet have therefore found that the position of Mahmud Shevket Pasha is too strong.

EMPEROR ACCEPTS
REPLICA AS PROOF
OF U. S. FRIENDSHIP

BERLIN.—With great pomp and ceremony the statue of General von Stein was unveiled in the presence of the Kaiser at Potsdam recently.

The admirable work of art by the sculptor Jaegers is a duplicate of the one recently erected in Washington, and is a gift of the American President to the Kaiser and his people. A deputation of Americans including Generals Garlington and Waterspoon, Captain Lusiter, Mr. Bartholdt—who addressed the Kaiser on behalf of the President—and others, was present, as well as the retiring ambassador, Dr. Hill, and the descendants of the famous German-American whose memory was being honored.

The Kaiser replied in a very cordial speech to Mr. Bartholdt, and accepted the gift as it was intended—as a sign of mutual friendship between the two nations. His majesty then gave the signal for the canvas to fall and the band played the American national anthem.

A telegram of hearty thanks was sent to the President by the Kaiser, and luncheon at the palace followed. His majesty complimented the sculptor on his work and conferred upon him the order of the Red Eagle.

LUSITANIA TRIES TO CROSS THIRCE
IN FORTNIGHT

(Special to the Monitor)

LONDON.—An attempt is now being made by the "Lusitania" to beat all previous records, including that of the Mauretania, made last Christmas, for a 12-day passage from Liverpool to New York and back.

Owing to the recent strike, the Lusitania was prevented from leaving Liverpool on the 19th of August, and did not sail until nine days later, the 28th of August. In order to make up the time then lost, and resume her normal dates of sailing, it is necessary that she should cross the Atlantic three times within a fortnight, and it is this record she is endeavoring to make.

Sailing on the 28th of August, the Lusitania landed her passengers at New York at 10 o'clock on the morning of the 24 of September. This outward trip occupied 4 days 18 hours 37 minutes, thus beating the Mauretania's outward passage, which occupied 4 days 20 hours 7 minutes. The Mauretania remained in New York harbor for 37 hours, but this period the Lusitania has reduced by five hours.

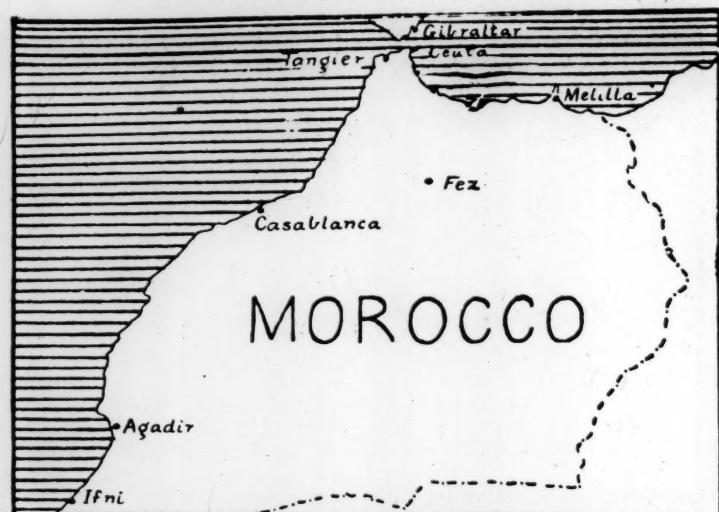

She is now on her homeward passage, and preparations of an elaborate description for disembarking her passengers, landing her cargo, reloading her, and embarking the passengers who will return by her to America. At 6 o'clock on Sunday evening, the Lusitania sailed for Liverpool, where she should disembark her passengers on Friday evening, and be ready to sail again before Sunday morning.

Her attempt to make this remarkable record is being watched everywhere with considerable interest.

Santa Cruz de Mar Pequena,
Claimed for 50 Years, Now
Will Be Taken by Force
as Maghzen Breaks Promise

ACTION IS AWAITED

(Special to the Monitor)

MADRID.—The forthcoming occupation of Santa Cruz de Mar Pequena, which has already been announced in the columns of The Christian Science Monitor, is occupying much attention at the present moment. The right of Spain to Santa Cruz is understood to have been confirmed in 1494 and revived again in 1860. As to the exact situation of Santa Cruz, however, there is believed to be considerable doubt in some quarters.

In the meantime a semi-official communique has been issued in which it is pointed out that the projects of Spain with regard to Ifni are in no way connected with the negotiations at present in course of progress between France and Germany, nor did they bear any unfriendly character toward France. The communique contains also the following reference to the subject:

"The rights of Spain to Ifni have been acknowledged for the last 50 years by a clause in the Hispano-Moroccan treaty, which was not carried out owing to the dilatory methods employed by the maghzen. For three years now different Madrid cabinets have been striving to secure the execution of the said clause. They informed the maghzen that Spain did not accept the continuance of such a state of things.

"Negotiations were then carried on in Rabat, Fez and Madrid, and the maghzen undertook to perform what had been agreed upon by the treaty of 1860 before May 1, 1911. The maghzen did not keep its promise. Spain might then have carried out the non-fulfilled clauses by her own means, but she was desirous of first exhausting all means of conciliation, and she arranged with the maghzen for a final respite for the designation of its delegate.

"One cannot, then, accuse the Madrid cabinet of impatience and inconsiderateness, nor establish any relation whatever between its decisions and circumstances alien to this affair. Moreover, Madrid has taken care to explain its reasons to Paris in friendly fashion, and besides the clause in the treaty of 1860 that Spain now wants to put into force was expressly safeguarded on the occasion of the negotiations for the Franco-Spanish treaty of 1904."

As regards the date of the occupation it appears that it has not yet been officially settled. Various reports consequently have been circulated with regard to the time when this step will be taken by the Spanish government. In some quarters it is stated that the occupation will take place next month but that the operation would be carried out at an earlier date were it not rendered impossible owing to the unsatisfactory condition of the harbor bar.

Royal Wife and Mother
Honored as Example by Christchurch Mothers

LONDON.—A letter has been addressed by the Mothers Union in the rural deanery of Christchurch, Hampshire, to the Queen, who is the patroness of the union, expressing their grateful acknowledgment of the services she is rendering to her people by her noble example as a wife and mother. "In these days," says the letter, "when the ties of home life are lightly regarded, they feel that your majesty's recognition of the claims of your home in the midst of a very busy life is of inestimable value to the nation." The following reply was received from the Queen's private secretary: "I have received the Queen's command to request you to be good enough to express to the members of the Mothers Union in the rural deanery of Christchurch, her majesty's deep sense of appreciation of, and hearty thanks for, the kindly sentiments of loyal assurance conveyed in their letter."

JEWISH IMMIGRANT
PRAISED AS THRIFTY,
CLEAN AND A WORKER

(Special to the Monitor)

LONDON.—Much has been said and written of late on the probability of a further Jewish immigration into this country owing to the unfavorable conditions prevailing in connection with this race in Russia. Influential Jews in England do not, however, share this belief.

Mr. Ansell, chairman of the board of guardians for the relief of the Jewish poor, declared recently that while there is no doubt that Jews are leaving Russia in large numbers and will do so, he did not think that this exodus would be very much felt in this land.

The United States is the goal very often of the emigrant Jew, for he knows he is welcome there as an industrious and law-abiding citizen. Mr. Ansell pointed out that the aliens act would have the effect of keeping the Jews from landing here, for however well-to-do a Jew may be in Russia, he is not suffered to take any of his possessions with him when he leaves that country.

Speaking of the ordinary Jewish emigrant to these shores, Mr. Ansell said that it was a mistake to suppose that he belonged to the hooligan class. This belief was engendered by the fact that owing to his poverty he generally settled in the East End. As a matter of fact he was clean, thrifty and laborious, and as for debt, Mr. Ansell could speak with authority when he said that though the

PARIS.—There is a decrease in the war estimates for 1912 of over £250,000 ($1,250,000) on those for 1911. The French active army in 1912 will consist of 28,743 officers and 555,910 men, as against 28,646 officers and 564,910 men in 1911.

When the budget of 1911 was drafted aviation, from the military standpoint, was in its infancy and it was necessary owing to its extraordinary development to grant supplementary credits. The estimates this year however contain regular credits for its normal upkeep; this includes £174,000 ($880,000) for the maintenance of the various aviation centers, and £200,000 ($1,000,000) to provide for aviation allowances.

CHEESE EXPORTS OF NEW ZEALAND
GROW STEADILY

(Special to the Monitor)

WELLINGTON, N. Z.—The New Zealand cheese industry has developed in a remarkable manner during the last few years. To such an extent is this the case that Canada already recognizes in New Zealand a new and vigorous rival in this industry.

During the last half of the past decade Canada has been steadily reducing her cheese shipments to England, while the Dominion of New Zealand has been equally and steadily increasing hers. Since 1906 supplies from across the Atlantic have fallen off by 16,000 tons, those from here have grown by 16,800 tons.

The quality of New Zealand cheese has continuously improved, and a considerable quantity of it already equals, for make and flavor, the best of the Canadian production.

HYDERABAD'S NEW

WITH GREAT POMP

(Special to the Monitor)

SECUNDERABAD, India.—The installation of the new Nizam of Hyderabad, the ruler of the greatest native state in the whole of India, has just taken place with the pomp and splendor inseparable in this country from such an event.

The British resident congratulated him upon his succession, advising him at the same time to move cautiously, to rely on experienced advice and assistance and to avoid violent changes.

His highness, who was clad in a dark suit in the European style and wore a white gold tipped turban, announced his intention of following in his father's footsteps and of carrying on and strengthening the tradition of Hyderabad as a faithful ally of the Indian government. This, he declared, was tantamount to benefiting the people with one hand and promoting the welfare of the Indian empire with the other.

Great enthusiasm was manifested by the populace as the Nizam arose by in a motor car on the termination of the ceremony of installation.

LISBON.—In the Chamber of Deputies on August 31 the minister of foreign affairs read a note which had been dispatched to the foreign legations, instructing them to assure the governments to which they were accredited, of the maintenance of the status quo ante in regard to foreign churches already established in Portugal.

The minister declared that he had never confused the question of separation of church and state with the recognition of the republic, because the latter was obligatory on the nations. The recognition of the Portuguese republic by Great Britain, he stated, would be intimated in two or three days.

Apparently it was considering such a step, but abandoned the idea owing to the strong representations made to the Chinese Emperor by all classes of Tibetans.

Meanwhile deputations have been arriving at Darjeeling with a view to persuading the Dalai Lama to return to Tibet. This, however, he declines to do unless China guarantees him full powers as formerly and also guarantees to withdraw all her troops.

BRISBANE, Q. Aus.—One of the two pictures recently purchased by the agent-general for the Queensland National Art gallery is at present in the London office at 400 Strand. The other picture, which is called "The Village Industries," by Stanhope Forbes, A. R. A., is at present in the exhibition at Rome.

SCOTSMAN SOUGHT
AS CANDIDATE FOR
KILMARNOCK SEAT

(Special to the Monitor)

EDINBURGH.—Strong protests have been made by the Young Scots Society at the choice of W. G. Gladstone as Liberal candidate for the Kilmarnock burghs. There are a number of Scotsmen available, it maintains, who are well qualified to stand, and the society is strongly opposed to the selection of an untitled Englishman.

The question is to be considered at a meeting called for the purpose, when it will be decided whether an independent candidate shall be asked to stand or whether the society will support the Labor party, provided the nominee meets with the approval of the Young Scots Society.

At a meeting of the labor representation committee held at Glasgow it was decided to contest the seat.

In consequence of the numerous complaints which have been made in many quarters on the subject of the public being debarred from the banks of Loch Lomond the Dunbarton county council has appointed a committee to prepare the estimates for a road to run from Balloch bridge to the loch. The road is to have a public park at its extremity. The county council have also declared the freedom of the river Leven and that the ferry rights at Balloch include the land.

The Labor party has mentioned Bailey McKerrall of Kilmarnock as a probable candidate, but no decision has yet been come to.

ADELAIDE, South Australia.—Concurrently with the development of the state, as a result of opening up large areas of crown lands and the building up of new railways, there has been during recent years considerable expansion in the government service, and the department of agriculture has been no exception.

The minister of agriculture, the Hon. J. P. Wilson, referring to future developments made an important statement concerning a scheme the government has been organizing for the establishment of a fish market and the development of the produce department in Adelaide.

Arrangements have been made with the federal prime minister for the engagement of the federal trawler to test the South Australian waters, and prove that a sufficient supply of fish is available to meet the requirements. It is intended that the market will be run in conjunction with the government ice and cold storage works at Light square, Adelaide, and the plans of the buildings are already in the hands of the works and buildings department. Not only will fish be dealt with, but general produce as well. A large business is now being done in canned meats.

BANQUET PROPOSED

(Special to the Monitor)

LONDON.—The question of education has taken up a considerable amount of the time of the meetings of the British Association at Portsmouth. Sir William Ramsay was among those who favored the entire abolition of examinations.

In dealing with the examination question Mr. Hartog of London University said that "the idol to which we are inclined to bow is the illusory standard of average attainment and to this the illusory examination test serves as a pedestal and support."

He pointed out, however, that examinations into specific knowledge were necessary, for no one, he said, would choose for a teacher of botany a person of whom it was said:

"A primrose by the river's brim,
A rhododendron was to him."

Mr. Hartog told also how on one occasion he had tested 50 Dartmouth naval cadets. He told each one to imagine that he was the governor of a tropical colony and that having required the assistance of some British bluejackets, he telegraphed to the nearest admiral. As they were not able, however, to arrive at once the services of the bluejackets of a friendly power, whose battleship arrived in the harbor in the meantime were requisitioned.

Owing to the lack of judgment of the commanding officer there appeared signs of possible trouble and hints were given to the officer to withdraw his men, but the hints were disregarded. The cadets were then instructed to write a firm and tactful letter to the admiral requesting him to withdraw his men without delay. The results, Mr. Hartog said, were excellent, a large number of the cadets coming to the same conclusion as he had himself, namely, that the admiral and his officers should be invited to a farewell banquet!

It was finally proposed by Mr. Hartog that the whole question of examinations should be the subject of a royal commission who should avail themselves of the services of paid experts and statisticians.

THE HOME FORUM

SEEING A BALL GAME BY WIRE

WE children of the Lady of Shalott, long familiar with phonographs and film shows, now find a diversion for the summer afternoons in viewing the progress of the baseball game reflected on an animated electric scoreboard. No sense of wonder is expected, yet surely it is worth a word of comment when a business man may pause for a minute on a downtown street and by his newspaper's electric scoreboard watch a Mathewson pitch the fatal sixth—every ball, every strike, every foul or hit or bunt or stolen base told graphically in the flashes of little incandescent bulbs on a miniature diamond. Light shines in the pitcher's box to show who has the ball; goes out; flashes over the catcher's label; gleams again as "strike." The catcher returns the ball; once more the bulb in the pitcher's box glows; dims and—a doorbell rings to denote a hit. The ball flew to right field, and a bulb now blazes steadily over first base, though the ball is again with the pitcher. A gong—this time it is a home run. You see the lamps flashing at first, second, third, the plate. Or if the home team's pitcher is being beaten half a dozen enthusiasts, whose imagination has made them forget they stand in the street instead of in the ball field bleachers, hoarsely cheer the unfortunate pitcher with words of comfort. When the Kansas City Star's new building was nearing completion nearly every one in the city who possessed a dust-speck of curiosity was guessing what Mr. Nelson meant to do with the vacant yard south of the plant. It proved to be a baseball park, with seats for a thousand and standing room for twice as many more. The diamond was an electric scoreboard. Fans' paradise, admission free.—Colliers.

CONCERTS FOR YOUNG PEOPLE

NOTING the concerts for young people reported for the season in Minneapolis, one remembers that Boston used to have something like that—popular orchestral programs which young people could properly attend. There is no more serious blunder than to think that merely practicing the piano makes a child a musician. He needs to hear good music quite as much as to pursue his own studies at the instrument alone.

Students have, of course, the inestimable privilege of the 25 cent seats at the Symphony rehearsals, which strangely enough are not always filled, though there are but about 500 of them. It is on a rainy day when there is no solo performer that some of these seats in the top balcony of Symphony hall remain unfilled. But if concerts of lighter music at popular prices could be given in afternoons for the youngest piano and other musical students it would be an impetus to musical education here. Of course there are many concerts at small price but none, as one recalls it, selected distinctly for the very young students.

In this connection one recalls a little recital at one of the Newtons some years ago when Mr. Lang went to a concert planned by one of his students and played a whole program of little pieces, the identical things which the children themselves were learning. He showed that he did not despise Schumann's dictum about playing the simplest things as perfectly as the great ones. Such teaching as this is what children need, not merely to grind away always at their own crude work, nor, on the other hand, to try to assimilate music too advanced for them. The New York concerts for young people are, it is said, a splendid success every year.

EDWIN ABBEY AND THE MULTITUDE

Boston Public Library Illustrates Mural Painting by Work of Artists of Three Schools

THE present discussion of Mr. Abbey's pictures in the Boston library opens again the interesting question of the comparative qualities of mural or decorative painting and pictures painted for their own sake, so to speak. In the Boston library one may view and interview three styles of mural painting, ranging from the almost purely decorative work of De Chavannes through the middle ground which Sargent takes to the frankly pictorial series by Abbey.

Mr. Abbey's series must be admitted to be the most successful, if by success is meant reaching the common heart; but the captious critic says that his pictures are too picturesque, that is, too expressive, too emotional, and apparently forget that they stand not on their own ground but as mere adjuncts to a dignified public building.

A painting of intimate things has its place, it would seem, in a private house or in a gallery where all the pictures live together and make their own atmosphere. In the library the pictures, admitted as it were on sufferance, should do as their entertainers do. The books very properly shut themselves away from casual glances, revealing themselves only to one who has patience to wait till his slip goes through the mill and the volume lies at last open for his patient questioning. Abbey's pictures, however, give themselves up to the visitor without waiting to be asked. But in the library there are nowadays many books that are to be had for the mere lifting from the shelf. No doubt these are not the best read, and even here each has to be chosen and opened before its thoughts are declared. Moreover, one who opens a book usually has some special quality in himself that makes him worthy of the introduction. But the pictures must stand unveiled and unshamed for the gaze of every passerby. Here no doubt is why decorative paintings like to be reserved and give up their treasures only to one who stands long at gaze.

On the other hand the generous aim of the decorative painter is to use color and massed effects which shall give an impression of beauty, even to those who pass indifferent. The great paintings of Puvion de Chavannes on the staircase of the library exemplify this. Their unimaginable blue, rich yet delicate, must be felt even by those passers who have no notion whatever of the subjects. Yet when one examines the pictures the meanings all seem, by the peculiarity of their design and technique, veiled as with a mantle of conventional but exquisite good breeding. Only those to the manner born really see these pictures.

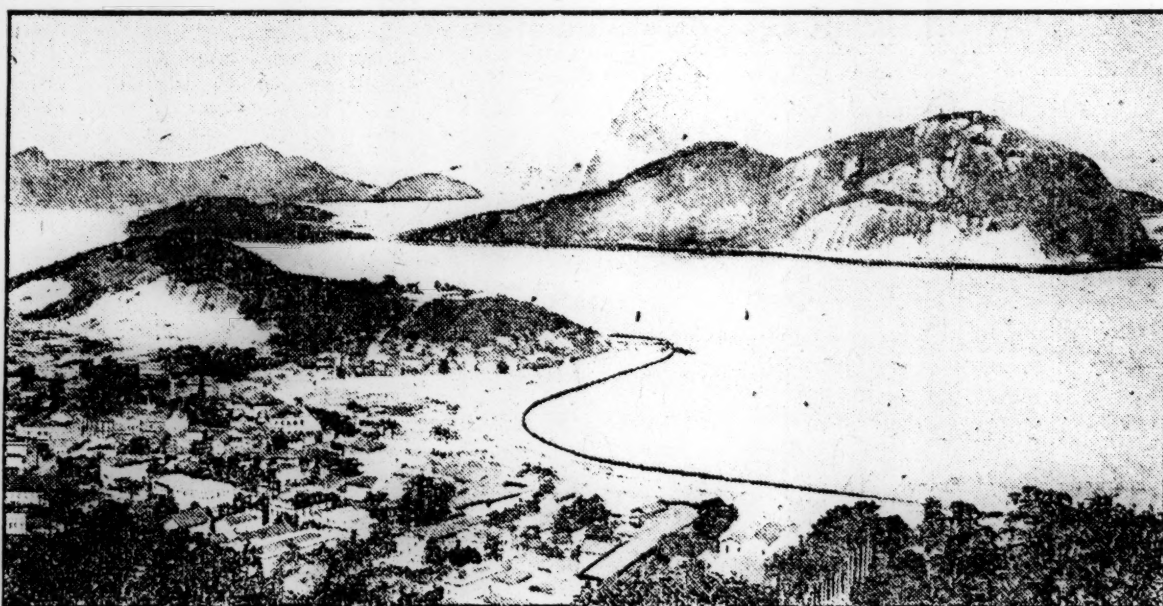

Again at the top of the library are the Sargent decorations. The frieze of the prophets is known the world over and holds flocks of visitors with craning necks. These gazers are only second in number to those who study the Grail pictures of Abbey. But in the Sargents is a sense of something withheld, not too frankly given.

The ceiling is a puzzle, of course, and the heavily draped forms of most of the prophets bring about this same feeling that they stand with a veil of decent reserve between them and casual callers. Those who have taken the trouble to climb the long flights of marble and stone to this high, silent chamber above—or have waited for the tardy elevator—deserve, and Sargent gives them, too, a rather more cordial reception from the mural paintings than the hesitating sightseer on the yellow marble terraces who climbs only to the first landing to look at the fountain and turns his back to M. de Chavannes. These things have a careful gradation of reserve, one finds.

Yet returning to the delivery room, small, dark, often crowded, one looks again at the Abbey frieze. Was this painter of famous story really wrong to take the public so directly to his heart? Is Sir Galahad, kneeling in the whole surrender of prayer in full sight of the busy room, really out of place? One muses on certain mural paintings of Murillo in Seville, where the homely settings of a kitchen are shown fluttered all about with angels' wings.

SOUTH ATLANTIC COAST BEAUTIFUL

VIEW OF HARBOR OF RIO DE JANEIRO

THIS birdseye view of the harbor of Rio de Janeiro gives an impression of remarkable picturesqueness and one wonders if a rival to the charm of the bay of Naples is not here. The splendors of this Brazilian capital are hardly dreamed of by those who have not visited these lands of the south Atlantic. This view shows something of the vegetable boulevard system of the city, which extends round the bay for many miles. The overcrowding of the tropic vegetation at the foreground is also typical of these southern cities where the destruction of forests wrought in city building is more quickly repaired than with us. The city lies very near the tropic of Capricorn.

"DIVINE ENERGY"

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE makes clear the fact that the motive power for all right thinking and acting proceeds from the one infinite Mind or divine Principle which created and governs the universe and man. The utilization of this divine energy or spiritual power by mankind is dependent, therefore, upon the ability of individuals to maintain a connection between their thoughts and this life-giving source.

The source of divine energy being inexhaustible and all-powerful, its expression can only be limited to those whose sense of it is limited. Not knowing how to reason spiritually the bias of educators has been in favor of material causation, hence mortals have been trained to regard all things from a finite point of view. The mental incapacity thus engendered has so minimized the human concept of God and man that scholastic theology has reached the depressing conclusion that to the children of men the divine Father is an incomprehensible mystery. Christian Science comes to rescue mankind from this hopeless condition of spiritual ignorance. It does not make its appeal through the enticing words of men's wisdom, but by demonstrations of spiritual power and in the healing of sickness and sin.

The divine energy which Christian Science imparts is not physical but metaphysical. It brings human thought into conscious relation with the divine Mind and enables the former to let go of its personal sense of God and man. What is termed the human mind, when examined in the light of absolute Truth, is found not to be a mind at all, but merely an aggregation of mortal beliefs, some of which are entirely false and others being based upon a partial conception of reality. It is apparent, therefore, that there must be an ultimate vanishing point for the human mind, and its period of seeming duration must become beautifully less as false beliefs give way to spiritual understanding.

It is generally admitted that knowledge is power and experience has taught that fidelity to the truth as one sees the truth is more successful, even in human affairs, than what the world has elected to call wisdom and prudence. Jesus once said that "the truth shall make you free," obviously implying that the activity of thought which impels mankind to seek and find divine Love and Wisdom is the only agency by which human beings can hope to escape from mental and physical slavery. Every one knows that the habit of brooding over evil is the surest means of propagating evil conditions. By inversion it must be equally plain that the practice of meditating upon the laws of God and the Principle of universal harmony has a corresponding and greater power to establish the kingdom of heaven in the hearts of men. When the seer of old said "as a man thinketh in his heart so is he" he evidently perceived the fact that a man's character is formed by his habits of thinking. Christian Science in our day reiterates this fact and shows that the Science of Being rests upon the demonstrable fact that "All is infinite Mind and its infinite manifestation, for God is All-in-all" (Science and Health, p. 468).

The very mental atmosphere in which man lives and moves and has his being and from which he derives all good is nothing more nor less than the spirit of Love. After enumerating the various attributes of reflected divinity, Paul declares "but the greatest of these is love." This spiritual quality is the mental state which connects all men with God and through it we are enabled to express the divine likeness and to overcome evil with good.

The declaration by Jesus that it was the Father within him that did the works and that he of himself could do nothing clearly indicated how fully he must have understood man's relationship to God. While Jesus was called the Saviour of mankind, he fully realized that he was only a human agent or messenger with a spiritual message. When he said that all men must come to him to be saved, he did not mean that the personal Jesus could save any one, but that the Truth which he taught would point the way to eternal life in that and every age. He also said that the words which he spoke, being divinely impelled, would not pass away or be forgotten until all should be fulfilled.

The divine energy which Christian Science imparts to those who understand and practice its teachings, even in a very limited degree, is repeating to the same signs and wonders which accompanied the gospel in Jesus' day. While no one in this age can be compared to the great master Metaphysician, Jesus the Christ, still there is a vast aggregation of spiritual healing work going on daily and hourly all over the civilized world through the practice of Christian Science. While the understanding of the healing Truth gradually grew less and less after Jesus' day, until it became largely dormant after the third century, we find today that the revival of Christ's teachings as set forth in Christian Science is continually unfolding and spreading farther and wider throughout human consciousness.

When Jesus was on earth he once said that he had many things to say which the people were at that time not ready to receive. He said further that at the proper time he would send the Comforter or spirit of Truth, which should bring men into all truth. According to Christian Science this spirit of Truth is a conscious reflection of the divine energy which heals the sick and saves the sinner. It is the same Mind which was also in Christ Jesus and which the Scriptures declare should be reflected by all. This divine Mind is foolishness to the worldly wise, but to those who are earnestly seeking for righteousness it is spiritually discerned.

FOUNDING A CHICKEN INDUSTRY

WRITING of a country home in Suburban Life some one makes chicken raising seem a very feasible business indeed. He says:

The way the Dresslers became successful chicken-raisers is quite characteristic. While the grounds were being developed, and soon after "the bread line" (a daily feast of scraps for birds) was established, they noticed a rooster pushing himself in through the brush every morning to get some of the crumbs that fell from the table. After a few days, he was accompanied by a pert little hen. The pair took their fill and went away as quietly as they had come. One of the workmen took it upon himself to investigate, and found that the pair had stolen a nest near a spring down the hill. None of the neighbors knew anything about them, and their presence was quite a mystery. "Take them," said the workmen to

Mrs. Dressler, who had demurred because she thought that the owner should be found, "or we will. They will make the finest kind of a potpie for us."

So Mrs. Dressler started as a fancier. She knew so little about chickens that she had to ask what they ate. The pair of chickens were given a coop, and soon became quite at home. The little hen hatched out a splendid family. As the Dresslers' interest deepened, from the reading of literature on the subject of poultry, more hens were added. Their chickens have been raised from the beginning according to the "close confinement" system, owing to lack of ground room, but they have done well. From Thanksgiving until spring Mrs. Dressler kept 27 fowls. She now has a few less. Her record for eight months, ending July 1, shows that these chickens laid 2222 eggs.

BALLADRY IN KENTUCKY HILLS

THE folklore of the British isles, says Hubert G. Shearin in the Sewanee Review, yet lingers in the sequestered valleys of eastern Kentucky. Moreover, in spite of recent developments, industrial and educational, balladry is still vigorous. Not only are old songs transmitted, new ones are written. "A happening in forest or mine, a quarrel, a county political campaign, in short, any unusual incident, is a ready source of inspiration to another 'song-ballet,' which in lieu of newspaper or telegraph becomes a very practical disseminator of local happenings and a real mold of public opinion."

These lyrics are sung to the thrum of banjo or "dulcimore," the latter, better known to dictionary folks as dulcimer, being indigenous to the region. It resembles a violin with greatly narrowed and elongated body and short-necked neck, is made of walnut or maple, and strung with three strings, which are plucked with a crow-quill held in the right hand. The first of these is touched with the left hand, as are the strings of a guitar, the other two, tuned an octave apart, being always open and keeping up a burden, somewhat similar to that of the bagpipe, to the melody played on the one string.

Of the 300 folksongs collected by Mr. Shearin 37 have come from the mother country.

In their century-long oral transmission, they have suffered little change. One reason for this is the charming naivete of the present-day Kentucky minstrel toward strange expressions. For instance:

Last summer a Kentucky fiddler was singing for me the "Ballad of Daughter of Islington." "What does that word ballad mean?" I asked him. "Oh, shucks," came his prompt and logical reply, "that's just in the song."—New York Post.

Railway Garden Plots Rewarded

Intrepid porters and station masters who undertake to turn even a little patch of ground alongside of the district railway stations in England into a flourishing garden have been encouraged by the distribution of £40 ($200) lately given away in prizes. The Cromwell depot in Earl's court bore off first prize, but Waltham Green ran close and came off with second, while Whitechapel station, in the least attractive part of London, where flowers are greatly needed, obtained two prizes for the neatness and productivity of a very narrow strip of ground.

Aeroplane Entering Art

The Studio illustrates a picture by Philip Carrano called "The Aeroplane," of much significance and power, if one may judge from the print. It is a world of clouds with snatches of clear sky. The earth lies dim and in miniature definition below with gleaming silver at the point where sky and earth meet on the open sea. Just perceptible in the midst of the dimmed sky, and riding above the heavier clouds is the aviator—even as we have seen him on a far flight ourselves. Above and as if swooping down on his track to see what he may be or birds that look scarcely lighter and freer of wing than the mechanism of the bird man. The loneliness of the flyer is the strongest impression of the painting. Spurning earth and not yet companioned in the sky he is a living type of the pioneer everywhere.

Wuellner's Popular Songs

With the interesting news that Dr. Ludwig Wuellner, the great lieder singer, is going to sing in vauville in the West this season, Musical America quotes him as follows:

"My songs are those which are most likely to appeal to the popular palate. I shall sing no Brahms. Brahms' songs are of too intimate a character for such a purpose. But I shall give such things as 'Erkonia,' 'The Two Grenadiers,' Hugo Wolf's 'Rattenfänger,' Sinding's 'Ein Weib' and Strauss' 'Steinklopfer.'"

Light of a Firefly

The statement that the light of fireflies and other phosphorescent animals is produced without any sensible degree of heat has often been repeated without any information as to the quantity of heat that would be required to produce a similar amount of light by artificial methods. This information is supplied by Professor McIntosh. He says that a temperature approaching 2000 degrees Fahrenheit would be necessary to make a light equivalent to that emitted by an ordinary firefly. The enormous waste of energy in all industrial methods of producing light is a matter of common knowledge, and the example of the firefly remains unimitated by man. The very simplicity of the mechanism employed by nature in phosphorescent animals is baffling.—Harpers Weekly.

Going Abroad for Cotton

THE bulletin on imports of cotton into the United States, just issued by the bureau of statistics of the department of commerce and labor, has educational interest in that it teaches again how certain, if sometimes silent, is the operation of the economic law of supply and demand. On the face of things, the bringing of foreign-grown cotton into the United States, save, as in the case of the Egyptian product, when a peculiar staple is required, seems wholly unnecessary if not absurd, since this country raises practically two thirds of all the cotton produced on the globe. The cry in the South for years has been for a larger foreign cotton market. If the Orient could only be led into the greater use of cotton, the demand for the staple, it was held, would be tremendously increased, with the price. Opinion has prevailed that the United States would be able to meet all calls for cotton. But it is shown now that the heaviest producer and exporter of cotton in the world is itself an importer of that article. During the last fiscal year it drew upon every cotton-growing country on earth and to an amount exceeding 113,000,000 pounds.

The cause of the annual increase in cotton importations into the United States is made plain. The advance has been steady since 1900, when imported cotton reached in volume 67,000,000 pounds; the increase has gone on, side by side with the advancing price of the domestic product. During recent years the price of cotton in American markets has let in more and more of the foreign-grown article at a price to insure profit. In years when American was cheap, foreign-grown cotton stayed out. Prior to the civil war, as the bulletin shows, the importations of foreign cotton never exceeded 1,000,000 pounds. Owing to the stoppage of production over wide areas and the blockade of southern ports, importations of cotton during the war ran up as high as 36,000,000 pounds, but they had dropped back to 1,000,000 in 1867. They amounted to less than 2,000,000 pounds in 1870 and to less than 4,000,000 in 1880.

The high prices prevailing in the United States have led to the development of cotton growing in all parts of the world where the culture of the staple is possible. The English, German and French governments have been cooperating along this line with industrial associations in their African colonies. Subventions and subsidies have been granted to the growers. Experiment stations have been established. Great progress has been made in some quarters, but there has been disappointment in others. The figures showing the number of 500-pound bales for distribution in 1908 and 1909 give the United States over 13,000,000 out of a total number of 19,613,000. The countries that contributed most to the remainder were British India, Egypt, Russia, China, Brazil, Peru, Mexico, Turkey and Persia. Manifestly, the demand for cotton has greatly increased; clearly, the supply is not at present keeping pace with demand. But growers and manufacturers are far apart in their theories and explanations of the rise as well as in their views as to the desirability of a larger output.

MR. HILTON's defeat of Mr. Herreshoff at golf was by so narrow a margin and under such circumstances as to make the Briton's victory over the American far from one calculated to discredit the gameness and skill of the defender of the Havemeyer cup. With the victory Mr. Hilton attains the unprecedented double honor of being amateur champion of Great Britain and also of the United States. By his recent overcoming of all opponents on the links at Prestwick and Apawamis this sound and sure but not brilliant exponent of the game has demonstrated in a remarkable fashion his ability to "come back." Ten years ago he had his day, then suffered an eclipse. Now he emerges again, with an international record of prowess unprecedented. That his play on the American links has had an excellent educational influence is beyond question far more helpful than that effected by any other British player since Mr. Vardon's visit back in the '90s, when the opportunity for advice and practical demonstration of golf was increased by the inexperience of American golfers. Mr. Hilton is especially strong in his straight driving and in his short-approach accuracy, which, coupled with good judgment and excellent technique and a steadiness under tests that cannot be foreseen, make him a formidable player and an excellent model.

Conference on Municipalities

IN VIEW of the length, scope and exceptionally ambitious character of the program arranged for the international municipal congress and exposition, which opened in Chicago yesterday and is to continue until Sept. 30, some departures from it would not be surprising, nor would they seriously interfere with or greatly lessen the importance of the proceedings. While no conference on municipalities has been projected before on such comprehensive lines, it might be truly said that the times have never before been quite ripe for proper handling of the subjects that are to be brought under discussion in the Chicago session.

Many theories have been reduced to practise in municipal government at home and abroad in recent years, and many of them are working out successfully. The time has gone by when a proposal for the better government of town or city is rejected because it means the introduction of a new system or the overturn of an old. The thought today of the urban public and of urban governors everywhere is receptive of proposals that give promise of making for better government, no matter whatever of innovation they may involve. Sometimes, indeed, the tendency toward change is too great, and under the influence of impulse rather than judgment mistakes are made. But in general the advance has been along lines of safety, and there is a marked disposition among municipal reformers to lengthen the period of experiment and to reject untested methods and systems.

Every important phase of modern municipal government is to be examined in the Chicago congress by men who are experts in their several lines. There is promise of debate that will be full and frank. The public in general is especially interested in the question of simplified municipal government, always having in view the special needs of communities, and always keeping to the very front the point of efficiency. Enlargement of civic duties and responsibilities, rather than their curtailment, a greater rather than a lesser municipal interest in matters of public convenience and public comfort, advancement of the idea that everything in the community must be made to conform to the interest of the mass, at the same time having jealous regard for the welfare of the individual, are among the popular expectations of the hour.

Few persons will challenge the claim that Canada never has passed through a more strenuous period of debate of national issues than the one soon to close. Statesmen in London and Melbourne are watching for the verdict at the polls with interest almost as intense as that of similar authorities at Ottawa and Washington. Be the decision what it may, the Dominion never will be precisely the same political entity that it was before the debate began. Nations, like individuals, form character and make history fast in crises when they have to think deep and feel intensely.

With the memory of the great discussions that preceded separation of the colonies from Great Britain, that followed creation of the republic and adoption of the constitution, and that later went on over the issue of slavery and assertion of state rights by the South, it requires some assurance to say that "there never was a time in America when large questions were more generally debated than now." Yet such was an interesting dictum dropped by Gov. Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey in a recent speech. He knows American history and political development as few men in the country do. His own gifts as an expositor of issues of state are striking.

May it not be interesting and possibly rewarding to consider some of the arguments that might be used to back up such a statement? The central, strategic word in this dictum undoubtedly is the word "generally." It is not a question as to whether either Massachusetts or Virginia now has the same number of men competent to go into such conventions as were held in Independence hall and come forth with reputations equal to those of Washington, Adams, Jefferson and Madison. Candid citizens of both these ancient commonwealths would have to admit that neither of them today is leading the nation's debate of profound political issues. Nor is the dispute to be settled by pointing to the great debate of Douglas and Lincoln and the effect it had upon national history, with a challenge to show anything like it now.

The nub of the issue is in the word "generally." There may have been greater personalities in the past, and political discussions of past days were unquestionably set on stage with more scenic accessories, such as those provided by wars for national birth and existence. But there never was a contest like the present one in the variety of the forms under which it is carried on and in the number of persons taking part in it. American democracy today is the theme of discussion in countless forms of literature, social organization and human intercourse that were unknown when the republic was founded or when the civil war closed. School and home, novel and drama, trades-union and social club, a thousand and one devices for stimulation of thought and expression of opinion, formal and informal, exist to further debate of contemporary issues. New groups of trained investigators and thinkers now challenge the former domination of clergy and lawyers in shaping public opinion. Universities and colleges deliberately foster continuous discussion of public questions. Federal and state executives tour about and champion personal or partisan policies as never before, provoking equally unprecedented retorts. Government is certainly a dominant interest, high and low.

CLEVELAND is getting a deal of satisfaction out of the probability that its West Side market house will be completed before the Panama canal. This illustrates pointedly the relative value of home and outside enterprises from a local point of view. But Cleveland is not the less interested in the Panama canal because it is the more interested in its new West Side market house.

GOVERNOR WILSON's attention may be properly invited to the thirty-two-inch ballot of Jersey City's primary. It may be that he cannot clip it, but he might say something that would have a tendency to check further growth in this particular. If ballots keep on increasing in length the time is coming when they will have to be wound on spools.

THE Manchester Union says that Governor Bass' action in joining with the "Democratic" governors in protesting against certain tendencies in the United States courts does not harmonize with the views of the Republicans of New Hampshire. But he also joined with some of the Republican governors in this matter.

FROCK coats and string ties were worn by most of the western and southern governors at the recent Spring Lake gathering, while the easterners wore ordinary business suits. It does not appear, however, that what any of the governors wore cut quite as much of a figure as what some of them said.

BY THE time the next session of Congress assembles there must be a decision of the question whether cuts of pie in the Capitol restaurant are to cost five or ten cents. The case is purely federal in character and all that the states can do is to look on while arbitration is in progress.

WHETHER the President shall decide to mention it in his speeches does not appear, but the fact remains that the tax rate of Beverly has gone down 20 per cent since he first took up his summer residence there.

THE lighthouse bureau could not well have resisted the protests against the removal of lights along the New England coast, but it might have kept Cape Ann longer in suspense, and it deserves thanks for not doing so.

THE country moves like a panorama before Mr. Taft. Early in the week, the copper belt; later in the week the corn belt, with the pie belt of his choice receding farther and farther as the pork belt draws near.

TO HAVE ships at sea that are accumulating unearned increment at the rate of $100,000 a voyage is to attract to yourself the attention of students of economics as well as enemies of the sugar trust.

Popular Debate Unprecedented

A CONTEMPORARY in a neighboring city seems to be exercised over the news from Troy to the effect that there is to be a return of the detachable shirt-cuff, but that its reappearance will not be altogether frank and open or free from all attempt to deceive, since the first step in the revival movement will be a detachable cuff that will look like the kind worn by those who do not have to care about the size of their laundry bills.

There is danger, it is held, that if people who cannot really afford permanent cuffs will permit themselves to contract the habit of wearing cuffs that look, but are not, permanent, they may fall into other habits, such, for instance, as wearing "dickies" or rubber collars.

There is nothing to justify such a belief. Possibly 99 per cent of all the wearers of detachable cuffs have been in utter ignorance of the fact that they have been out of style. There are fewer detachable cuffs worn in summer than in winter, of course; but with the return of fall the average man again wears the wristband shirt and pokes into his bureau drawer for the reversible or irreversible cuff. When he has also found his cuff buttons and is ready for the street or the store or the office, the average man is not conscious that his cuffs are detachable or undetachable, his only care being that they will stay up and look almost as well in the afternoon as in the forenoon. If they fail him in this particular, and they are reversible, he turns them, and, as it were, takes a fresh hold upon his business or professional affairs; but he has not the remotest thought of deceiving anybody, not even himself.

It is said that 10 per cent of all cuff wearers tell their wives when they want something new in the cuff line, that 20 per cent take notice when their cuffs begin to fray at the buttonholes, but that the remaining 70 per cent put on and take off their cuffs mechanically and never give a second thought to them unless the cuff button slips through their fingers and rolls under the bureau.

Nevertheless, it is not going too far to say that the news from Troy will prove interesting to tens of thousands of those whom we may speak of as detachable-cuff wearers. Troy is one of the recognized centers of the cuff industry and it ought to know what is going in cuff styles. Yet it is only fair to presume that the feature of the news about detachable cuffs that will enlist the greatest interest among the plain men of the nation is not that the detachable cuff is again coming in but that it has ever been out.

Rootless Sponges from Cuba

WHILE the sponge industry has long been profitable to Cuba, and the waters in the vicinity of Batabano, between the mainland and the Isle of Pines, have been furnishing employment to 25 per cent of Batabano's male population, recent experiments in which the United States government has taken the lead promise to make sponge-fishing even more of a paying proposition. The task of bringing the sponge from its native lair on the bottom of the ocean has always been considered a delicate one because the root is the most vulnerable part of the sponge, and at this point it first begins to tear. In order to obviate that tearing, attempts have been made to grow sponges without roots, and it is due to Dr. H. F. Moore of the United States bureau of fisheries that the production of the rootless sponge is now established.

It may be accepted offhand that the experiments of the government officials took principal account of domestic sponge-fishing. In Florida waters efforts are now being made to test the system on all the varieties which exist within American jurisdiction. But Cuba will no doubt be quick to take advantage of the new method, and where the Batabano market has long been famous for its sponge displays, the rootless varieties are expected to be put on sale in large quantities as soon as they mature.

Practically all sponges have heretofore been taken by hooks. But on the north and east coast of Yucatan, Mexico, large sponge beds have recently been discovered which promise to yield great quantities of what are called the "silk" and "sheep's wool" varieties. Here a New Orleans syndicate has made ready to go to work and they expect to employ Greek divers with the most modern apparatus.

AN OMEN of a better era in road building and state comity is seen in the conference at Springfield, Mass., and in the tour of New England by the highway commissioners of New York and the six states whose roads are to be under scrutiny. The presence of a representative of the federal government, a specialist in road construction, tells of another aspect of the situation that is favorable, namely, the increasing concern of national lawmakers and administrators with the highway problem. Once solely a matter of local initiative this problem, in several of the states, has come to have such importance to the commonwealth as a whole that it now is being dealt with by the state, as well as by localities, with beneficial results to all persons using the highways either for pleasure or for business. Now adjacent states are cooperating to make their road systems as uniform as possible and to provide trunk lines that will serve sectional as well as state ends.

It is this step in advance that the present tour of New England and New York commissioners and experts is planned to accelerate. How soon we may expect the step beyond this, namely of federal routes, designed for national purposes, is not evident now, though it is a matter of fact that such schemes multiply and find advocates willing to introduce bills for them at Washington. The more action there is by states acting in comity and for sectional ends the less legitimate demands there will be for any experimenting by the national government.

New England, for instance, after these plans for interstate action are perfected, will be so cared for that any talk of further action by the Washington authorities with reference to this section would be wasted. The demand for federal highways will come from regions less populous and homogeneous than New England, where unity of action is more difficult. The New England and New York method of joint state action seems the best way, simplest to organize and to carry out, most in harmony with national traditions, and with fewest hazards.

IT LOOKS now as if we should soon hear the last of the Moroccan question. From all appearances, those most interested in it are least disposed to keep up the controversy.
